The Country Is Sound. Too Many Pessimists. Prosperity Normal. Don't Worry About 1928.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

TOO many talk without reason about "times not quite so good." The unwise include newspaper editors that have access to information and should know better.

All citizens, editors and important businessmen especially, should remember this statement by James Speyer, New York banker, and a man of brains, "prosperity is now the normal condition of the United States."

THERE is no more reason for expecting prosperity to stop than for expecting the Niagara River to stop flowing over the cliff. Everything is promising in [illegible]is country, wealth, high earning [illegible]er, good wages. There is no [illegible]nger except in "FOOLISH UN[illegible]ECESSARY PESSIMISM."

PROSPERITY is not always exactly the same. The water that rolls over Niagara is not always the same in quantity, the level of the lakes rises and falls. But ENOUGH power is always there.

And enough prosperity, employment and growth will continue indefinitely in the United States, unless the weak, foolish, timid and pessimistic prevent it.

A DROP of a few points here and there in the stock mar[illegible]t causes the very ignorant to [illegible]y that times are bad.

Pools operate in stocks, now on [illegible]e long side, then on the short. [illegible]e stock ticker is a barometer in [illegible] general way, not in detail.

Business is not going backward. Unemployment, that disturbs many, has reached its peak and with average common sense will diminish steadily from now on, making 1928 one of our best years.

AS REGARDS stocks, it must be remembered that quotations have risen steadily for three years. Mere prosperity makes the gambling element nervous. Their occasional fits of nerves mean [illegible]thing.

GOVERNMENT and intelligent big employers can reduce unemployment to a minimum, if they will. National and state governments should imitate Governor Smith of New York, who orders heads of departments in every reasonable way to find work for the unemployed in NECESSARY AND USEFUL public works.

THE country has hundreds of millions of surplus money. Work that would give jobs to tens of thousands of men is needed in the Mississippi valley, the Colorado River project, in canal building, and other directions.

And money thus spent, besides giving employment, would return tenfold in new national wealth.

NEWSPAPER editors, business men, public officials from the President down are advised to read a summary of business conditions prepared by the Portland Oregonian, published in its Sunday edition of February 26th.

BEFORE judging "business conditions" consider the effects of sudden and widespread expansion of "installment buying." Letting a man enjoy a thing while he pays for it promotes business, according to many whose judgment should be good.

But installment buying enables a man to spend today his earnings for a year ahead. Millions of Americans have recently bought on the installment plan, an automobile, radio, washing machine, talking machine, piano, furniture, house and lot.

THE people are buying as much as ever, but many are paying now for what they bought on installments some time ago. It will take them a while to catch up, and begin installment buying again.

In other words, the country must adjust itself to the new plan of credit buying, SPENDING IN ADVANCE.

But that does not mean, in the long run, less production, less purchasing, less prosperity.

THERE is unemployment in the country, sufficient to cause distress, and to make talk of prosperity a mockery to a great many. Business energy, national and state governments can remedy that situation promptly if they will.

On the other hand, consider now some facts developed by the Port[illegible]nd Oregonian, in its admirable [illegible]vestigation.

MINE WITNESS MISSING; MYSTERY CLOAKS FATE

Ralph Blimer, non-union miner, who complained to the Senate investigating committee last Thursday of conditions at Coverdale camp of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, disappeared immediately after telling his story, it was learned today, and efforts to find him have been unsuccessful.

That Blimer had vanished was learned in the course of a conversation with G. F. Osler, vice president of the company.

"Would you not have discharged him, even if he had not left?" Mr. Osler was asked.

"No, we had no intention of discharging him."

"Did he have any money coming to him?"

"Yes, he had loaded a few cars of coal, and had a little money due him."

Blimer told the Senators that the bunkhouses of the Pittsburgh Terminal were filthy, that the miners were nearly all in debt to the company, and that commercialized vice flourished in the camp. This last

WORK POOR—LANG

BULLETIN.

"The Vang Construction Company, contractors for the new Mt. Washington roadway, has agreed to make the necessary borings and tests under city supervision, to determine the condition of the road," Public Works Director Edward G. Lang told Council this afternoon at a meeting called to probe charges of "cheating" in construction of the boulevard.

City Council this afternoon started an official probe of charges of cheating in construction of the new Mt. Washington boulevard. Defective cement work is said to show cracks in the roadway and honeycomb spots in the bridge spanning the Castle Shannon incline are said to have appeared.

Edward G. Lang, director of public works, with his chief engineer, C. M. Reppert, today inspected the new boulevard, and the director expressed himself as "very much displeased" with the work done on the road and bridge.

"NOT SATISFIED"—LANG

Following the inspection trip, Director Lang said:

"I can say only that the work is not satisfactory so far as a surface examination reveals. Of course our inspection this morning could be only superficial."

It will be necessary, the director said, to remove the remainder of the forms from the bridge and approaches to determine by drilling whether the honeycombing of the concrete is such as to affect the lasting qualities of the work.

Fever Hits Knoxville School

Scarlet fever has broken out in Knoxville grade school, and measles victims are plentiful in all the public schools, Dr. A. M. Kerr, medical superintendent of the Board of Education, admitted today.

Nine pupils of the Knoxville school are scarlet fever patients, Dr. Kerr said.

The school will not be closed because the pupils can more readily be attended to prevent an epidemic while in class, Dr. Kerr said.

Dr. Kerr was unable to estimate the number of measles cases, in the absence of Dr. Harry D Burns, director of hygiene for the Board of Education, who is attending a convention in Boston. He said that such a condition usually prevails at this time of year.

King Raid Case Is Dropped

The charges were based on alleged liquor seizures in raids on alleged gambling houses at 5604 Baum boulevard and 110 Penn avenue. The raids were made by prohibition agents after evidence was said to

PITTSBURGHER BLACKS BARRYMORE'S EYE—NOT IN MOVIES, EITHER!

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March, 1.

MYRON SELZNICK, film producer, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., was being pointed out on the boulevards today as the man who had blackened one of the flashing eyes of John Barrymore, screen lover.

MYRON SELZNICK
Until Recently of Pittsburgh.

Barrymore, who once punched a man who had flirted with the beautiful Dolores Costello, was reported out of reach at a small resort near here, but Selznick talked. They fought, Selznick said, on the lawn of the Ambassador Hotel after the Don Juan of the screen had insulted him in Lionel Barrymore's bungalow during a business conference for which Selznick had left the Wampas ball.

"I think the mistake was that I told him he was too old to fight after he had challenged me," Selznick said. "He insisted then. We fought 10 minutes, and Owen Moore couldn't separate us."

Selznick modestly left the impression that he had gained the pugilistic verdict. Some spectators called it a draw. But Barrymore himself isn't on hand to testify—and Hollywood is wondering whether he is allowing the reported darkened optic to wear off in privacy.

MARINES OUT TO AVENGE

By International News Service.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 1.—Get Sandino!

This cry rang through the hills of Nicaragua today as the United States Marine forces redoubled their efforts to capture the guerilla leader whose latest sally against the "devil dogs" resulted in the death of five men and the wounding of eight others.

Airplanes zoomed from the valleys to the mountain tops and flew low over the jungles while observers scoured the countryside with field glasses for clues to the whereabouts of the rebel band responsible for the latest American losses.

Scouts penetrated deeply into the jungle over little-used trails in a wide search for Gen. Sandino and his followers.

Meanwhile, the wounded were being rushed to Condega. The dead are believed to have been buried near Daraili where the bandits fired from a ranch house upon a pack train commanded by Lieut. Edward F. O'Day, of New Hampshire, and consisting of 36 Marines, six Nicaraguan muleros and 90 mules with provisions for another outfit.

The attack occurred Monday afternoon, but the names of the dead and wounded were not ascertained until today.

Hays Admits Big Sinclair Gifts

CONFLICT IN AMOUNTS AIRED

the $185,000 borrowed from Sinclair, Hays said, $60,000 was turned over to Fred W. Upham, of Chicago, western treasurer of the Republican National Committee, $25,000 was sent to former Secretary of War John W. Weeks, of Boston, to be used to pay off a deficit in New England, while $50,000 was given to John T. Pratt, of New York, for a like purpose.

Hays said $50,000 of the $185,000 loan was immediately returned to Sinclair. He added that he got a $50,000 contribution from Pratt, which was paid over to Sinclair.

Later, Hays testified, he had paid the remaining $85,000 to Sinclair out of his own fortune, but Sinclair gave it back to him.

"Mr. Sinclair," says Hays, "should now be credited with a personal contribution of $75,000 an an additional $85,000. This brings the total of his final contribution up to $160,000."

Hays first told of leaving the Republican National Committee in 1921 and the Cabinet, where he was Postmaster General, in 1922.

"I responded to a request from the treasurer of the committee in 1923 to aid in the endeavor to liquidate the indebtedness of the Republican National Commitee," said Hays.

"Among those to whom I appealed for contributions was Mr. Harry F. Sinclair. He said that he would make a personal contribution which he thought should not exceed $75,000. He also said he would turn over to us approximately $185,000 in government bonds in addition to his contribution, for such use as might become necessary, upon my assurance that he would be repaid the total amount advanced in excess of the $75,000 contribution."

Then Hays told how the money was used and how Sinclair was repaid $100,000.

APPLIED TO DEBT

"The $75,000 of the bonds constituting Mr. Sinclair's personal contribution were applied on the committee's indebtedness at the Empire Trust Company, through the chairman of its board, Gen. T. Coleman DuPont," Hays said.

"Fifty-thousand of the original $185,000 received from Mr. Sinclair were returned by me to Mr. Sinclair.

"Of the remaining $135,000 I delivered to Mr. John T. Pratt, of New York, to the best of my recollection, $50,000, at about which time he placed in the hands of the committee $50,000 in adidtion to amounts he had previously contributed. Later I asked Mr. Pratt to add that sum to his previous contribution. To this he agreed and delivered to me $50,000 in government bonds, but I had no knowledge as to whether they were the same bonds I had previously delivered to him. These bonds in any case, were given by him to Mr. Sinclair.

"Of the approximately $85,000 remaining, I delievred $25,000 to Secretary John W. Weeks, of Boston, to be usd by him in his efforts to raise money for the deficit, and they were used by him for that purpose.

"The approximately $60,000 remaining I delivered to Mr. Fred W. Upham, of Chicago, for the same purpose, and they were used by him for that purpose.

"Consequently I lacked approximately $85,000 with which to repay Mr. Sinclair the entire $185,000. I felt bound to reimburse Mr. Sinclair in full and I did so, hoping at the time that I could get some further help later from others, but this did not materialize.

"I had suffered financial losses, of which Mr. Sinclair knew. He did not feel that I should bear this burden personally and he voluntarily returned the $85,000 of securities which I had caused to be delivered to him."

GRILLED BY WALSH

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, questioned Hays about the gifts.

"How did you come to set $185,000 as the total of Sinclair's loan?"

"That I do not remember," said Hays.

"Why didn't you use all of the Sinclair loan?"

"We just didn't need it."

"Was it made up from some other source?"

"I can't tell that."

"Did you make any report of these negotiations?"

"No, I wasn't in any official position."

"Weren't you concerned that the treasurer should report these matters, as required by law?"

"I assume such reports were made."

"Was anybody else as liberal as Mr. Sinclair?"

"I think so."

"Can you give us any names?"

"No."

Hays said he thought Daniel G. Reid, of Richmond, Ind., had made a $100,000 contribution.

"Did you get any contribution that equaled Sinclair's $160,000 gift?"

"No, I didn't," said Hays.

"Why was Mr. Sinclair so exceptionally liberal to the Republican National Committee?" asked Walsh.

"I asked him to help."

"Was that all?"

"Yes, that was all."

Then Walsh referred to Hays' testimony in 1924.

"Why didn't you tell us about the Sinclair bonds then?"

"I didn't volunteer it and I wasn't asked about them," said Hays.

Here Senator Cutting, Republican, of New Mexico, brought out that John T. Pratt was a brother of Herbert L. Pratt, head of the Standard Oil Company of New York. Hays had referred to John T. Pratt as a "philanthrophist."

Senator Bratton (D.), of New Mexico, read Hays' testimony given in 1924 in which the latter insisted that Sinclair had given the Republicans only $75,000.

"You knew at the time you gave those answers that Sinclair had given you $185,000 in bonds which you did not mention?"

"Yes, but that had all gone back to him," said Hays.

"Why didn't you mention the $185,000 when it was given you at the same time as the rest?"

"WASN'T ASKED."

"It had been returned. I wasn't asked about it."

Walsh caused a mild sensation by suggesting that the $60,000 of Sinclair bonds, sent to Chicago, had been distributed to individuals, who sold them and contributed the proceeds to the Republican National Committee.

"Didn't you know that Mr. Upham took these $60,000 in bonds and distributed them among individuals who sold them and then made contributions to the Republican National Committee?" Walsh demanded.

"Certainly not to my knowledge," said Hays.

"It looks a little suspicious, doesn't it?"

"I wouldn't say that."

EX-DRAGON, IN INDIANA JAIL, PROMISES AID

By Universal Service.

KOKOMO, Ind., March 1.—Promising his aid, D. C. Stephenson revealed a nation-wide effort to kill the Ku Klux Klan, when a letter from Van A. Barrickman of Pittsburgh, Pa., addressed to him at the state prison, was made public.

Publication of the letter overshadowed interest locally in the former Grand Dragon's testimony before the grand jury which is investigating the crash of the American Trust Company.

Lloyd O. Hill, attorney for Stephenson, to whom the letter was given for action, said that his chief would be glad to give a deposition requested by the Pennsylvania attorney.

The letter also showed that anti-Klan supporters in the Eastern state are working with Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, who is seeking to oust the order from Indiana.

The Ku Klux Klan was characterized as a menace to free institutions, according to the communication, and declared the organization "had been committing all kinds of violations of laws under the name of Christianity."

"Our purpose is to have the Klan put out of business in our state," Barrickman wrote, "as it has become a public nuisance. The Klan has developed into a criminal organization and should be chacked in its career."

Stephenson spent several hours with the grand jury, but only after he had been promised a half hour's conference with his attorneys before being taken back to the prison, declaring that he feared "the worst torture in the history of the country," when he returns to the prison.

Actions of the State Finance Board, which places state funds on deposit and of which Gov. Ed. Jackson is a member, will be gone into it is understood, through Stephenson's testimony. The jury also is planning to ask him what he meant when he told officials that Lafayette, Ind., was one of the "rottenest spots in Indiana."

State Banking Examiner Luther Symonds, his deputy, Thomas Barr, former State Treasurer Ora J. Davies, and nine others, were indicted by a former grand jury in connection with the collapse of the bank.

Radio Bride Balks, So Program Director Picks One for Self

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A radio wedding was scheduled to be the chief attraction at a "leap year" party broadcast from the studio of WMAL here last night. But at the last minute the prospective bride and groom, panicky at the thought of being married before an unseen audience of thousands, backed out.

A Cloyd Gill, assistant city editor of the Washington Times, who was directing the program, sprang into the breach.

Is Miss Pauline Blake in the studio?" he asked.

"Yes, right here," came the answer from a feminine voice.

"Well, we're likely to get married some day anyhow, so why not right here and now?" said Gill.

A faint voice wah heard to murmur assent; the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, pastor of the Petworth M. E. Church, was summoned; an orchestra played the Mendelssohn march, and the marriage took place before the microphone.

WILL CELEBRATE "CHARTER DAY"

March 4 is Pennsylvania's "Charter Day," but since it falls on a Sunday, and since the schools are closed on Saturday, tomorrow will be devoted to commemoration of the occasion by school children throughout the state.

Pittsburgh's public and parochial schools will hold their first observance of "Pennsylvania Day" tomorrow. Owing to delay in receiving instructions from the State Department of Education, no elaborate programs have been prepared. The exercises will consist of appropriate readings and declamations dealing with the history and greatness of Pennsylvania.

At the South Hills High School, Miss Helen Hodges will speak of the granting of the charter of Pennsylvania to William Penn by Charles II, on March 4, 1681. Kathleen Leggett will deliver an address on the life of William Penn and the principles that he followed in founding the Commonwealth. The history department, under the supervision of Miss Jane Hobbs, is sponsor for the exercises.

The Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parish schools, has directed that "Pennsylvania Day" be observed appropriately throughout Pittsburgh Catholic diocese.

The latest ambush by Sandino's forces now brings the total number of marines killed since last May up to 21.

The first word of the ambush was brought to Yali early Tuesday morning by two marines sent back by Lieut. O'Day. The commanding officer at Yali promptly sent out a panel signal which Capt. Robert J. Archibald, a marine aviator, picked up while on daily patrol.

Reinforcements were rushed from Yali, but in the meantime Capt. McNulty, commanding a detachment of 85 marines, going east from Condega over the same road on another mission, met O'Day's outfit and rendered assistance.

O'Day's pack train left Estell last week with supplies for the Yali detachment and was returning to Condega when attacked.

Machine gun fire from a farmhouse at the top of a hill near Daraili took the marine detachment entirely by surprise. The men were mowed down before they had a chance to find cover.

TWO VICTIMS OF AUTOS DIE

A man and a woman died last night from injuries received when struck by automobiles.

Mrs. Harriett Hunter, 50, of 11 Aston avenue, Crafton, died in her home two hours after she was knocked down in Steuben street by a machine driven, police say, by C. B. Friend, of 246 Ingram avenue, Ingram.

Charles Bell, 47, of Dravosburg, received a fractured skull when he was struck by a car on the Dravosburg-Camden road, and died in the McKeesport Hospital. According to police, the driver was Samuel Moss, of Coal Valley.

"OIL" WAY OUT OF PAYING FOR GASOLINE

"Now give us two quarts of your best oil," one of three men in an automobile told Homer Zapf, attendant at a filling station at 4200 Brighton road, Ross township, this afternoon after Zapf had put 14 gallons of gasoline in the machine.

While Zapf went for the oil the three drove away.

THAT "KRUSCHEN FEELING" OF GLORIOUS VITALITY

Every vitalizing mineral element that your blood and body needs to keep you in buoyant health and also keep you from growing old too fast is found in Kruschen Salts—not one salt only—but six.

The man or woman who has lately adopted the "Kruschen habit" of dropping two tablets of Kruschen Salts in the breakfast cup of coffee every morning (tasteless that way) will soon be rewarded a thousand fold.

But please remember "It's the little daily dose that does it" so don't miss a single day. Stick to the "little daily dose" of Kruschen and good health will come to you—and stick to you.

For one thing your blood will be refreshed and free from poisons and harmful acids, for the duty of Kruschen is to keep stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys in perfect natural working order.

The daily Kruschen habit brings quickly to gloomy, depressed, half sick people the youthful joy of living. You'll look on the bright side of life—you'll get up in the morning after a sound sleep, full of renewed energy and a love for the work you have to do.

Millions the world over know this—millions whose sparkling eyes and clean skin and energetic movements proclaim to the world the Kruschen habit—Life to them is well worth living. 60 tablets, 60 cents (30 days treatment) at druggists the world over. McCulloch Drug Stores sell lots of them.

"Now! I am right—"

"FORTUNATELY, I found myself in time. I was going down! down! down! I didn't want to eat; there was no desire for it. My muscles were getting flabby—I tired easily. Many a morning I would get up after a sleepless night feeling that I could hardly pull through the day. I was also troubled with those annoying so-called skin troubles. Then, one day a friend urged me to give S.S.S. a trial. Before finishing the first bottle, I could see I was improving. That was only a few weeks ago. Today I feel more like myself than I have in years."

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefit in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

Made only from the fresh vegetable drugs gathered at the proper season of the year, S.S.S. gives to Nature what she needs in making you yourself again.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. Get the large size. It is more economical.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

From Youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it when a tonic is indicated.

The Woman Who Knows

To consider the spring wardrobe early; to select, without postponement, the dress, the coat, the hat, discovered today as one's destiny and without which one will not be happy; to be ready for the full enjoyment of the season at its very beginning—that is the way of the woman who knows that the world moves swiftly.

LAZE HE BATTLES KILLS FIREMAN'S TWO SON

EPEAT TRAGEDY OF 35 YRS. AGO

A striking coincidence came to light today when Luke avage, city engineer of McKeesport, Pa., told a story of 35 ears ago that almost exactly paralleled yesterday's tragedy, hen two children of Fireman William Lynch, of Pittsburgh, ost their lives when their home caught fire.

In 1893, Savage said, his uncle, a ireman, likewise named Lynch—Mi hael Lynch—while on a truck an wering an alarm, discovered—as did William Lynch yesterday—that the laze was in his own home. Michael likewise had two children—a boy and a girl. Michael, too, was the first to leap from the truck, running ahead in an effort to save his children. He also failed in the attempt. He was overcome by smoke, and told of the death of the babies when he recovered consciousness in a hospital.

EIGHT BARRELS OF MASH FOR HUSBAND, SHE SAYS

"If your husband drinks all the moonshine that eight barrels of mash will make, he ought to be sick," declared Magistrate John Orie, in sentencing Mrs. Rae Malwood, 38, of 43 Vine street, to pay $100. Police seized a 50-gallon still, eight barrels of mash and seven gallons of liquor in a raid yesterday. Mrs. Malwood's defense was that she made the liquor for her husband, who is ill.

THOUGHT BOYS SAFE; MOTHER IN HYSTERICS

Stricken by the death of her two children, who lost their lives in a fire which their father, William R. Lynch, a fireman, was called upon to fight, Mrs. Lynch was a nervous wreck today. She was unable to sleep last night.

Lynch, driver of the chemical truck of Engine Company No. 16, at Penn and Lang avenues, found yesterday when he answered an alarm from box No. 774, that his own home at 7129 Willard street was on fire, that his son Robert, 3, had perished in the flames, and another son, Jack, 4, was dying. The boy was rushed to the Pittsburgh Hospital, but died in his father's arms in the ambulance.

TRAPPED BY FLAMES

Leaving the two babies sleeping on the second floor, Mrs. Lynch had gone shopping yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Margaret Glenn, a neighbor. Her other child, Richard, 9, was at St. Bede's school.

When the fire was discovered Miss Margaret Pearson, a niece of Mrs. Glenn, tried to rescue the Lynch children, but was driven back by smoke.

When the alarm sounded in the engine house, Lynch became apprehensive, for he knew that box No. 774 was near his home.

"He drove like fury," said Capt. Henry J. Rice of the engine company. "When we got to the blaze he was off the truck in a flash. He hunted frantically through the burning home. His comrades aided him in the search. They thrust flashlights into the corners of the cellar and upper stories, but did not find the children, and neighbors said they were safe. Then Chief Fred Hackett cut a hole through an attic wall and found the tots with their arms around each other in a dark recess under the eaves."

MOTHER HYSTERICAL

Mrs. Lynch arrived shortly after the bodies were removed, and on learnings the news became hysterical.

The fire was quickly extinguished.

"This is a great blow to 'Bill' and all of us," said Capt. Rice. "He has been one of us for 18 years and we feel his loss keenly."

The Result of Neglected Constipation is Auto-Intoxication

Comparatively Few People Realize What This Neglect Leads to

CONSTIPATION is the most common ill which the human system is heir to. It is so common that it is often lightly regarded—yet it leads to scores of very serious ailments.

Many eminent writers on health subjects today, are warning their readers to avoid Auto-Intoxication (self-poisoning).

How Troubles Start

The trouble is, that when our stomach or bowels get out of order, we take some ordinary corrective. If it effects any benefit in a day or so, we think we are on the road to recovery. We do not realize that when one of the organs of our digestive tract fails to function—one or more of the others are usually sympathetically affected, and by treating the first symptoms, we are neglecting the real cause.

The Effects of Neglect

And it is this neglect that produces Auto-Intoxication, which if permitted to run along, often leads to Gall Stone formations, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Appendicitis, Hardening of Arteries, and Premature Old Age.

The liver is the largest, most important and often the most neglected gland in the human body. When the liver fails to supply an ample flow of liquid bile, it also stops the flow of digestive juices from the pancreas. As a result the foods we eat remain in the intestines undigested; fermentation sets in. Then follows Auto-Intoxication, with its toxic poisoning and millions of disease-breeding germs.

A Natural Treatment

Zilatone is Nature's remedy to correct and banish such conditions. It contains in highly concentrated form, the very elements which Nature, herself, supplies to keep normal people in vigorous good health.

It is not a mere medicine. It is an effective scientific treatment for all disorders of the digestive tract. It starts with the stomach and does not stop until all poisonous waste matter has been passed on and the digestive and drainage organs are again working in perfect harmony.

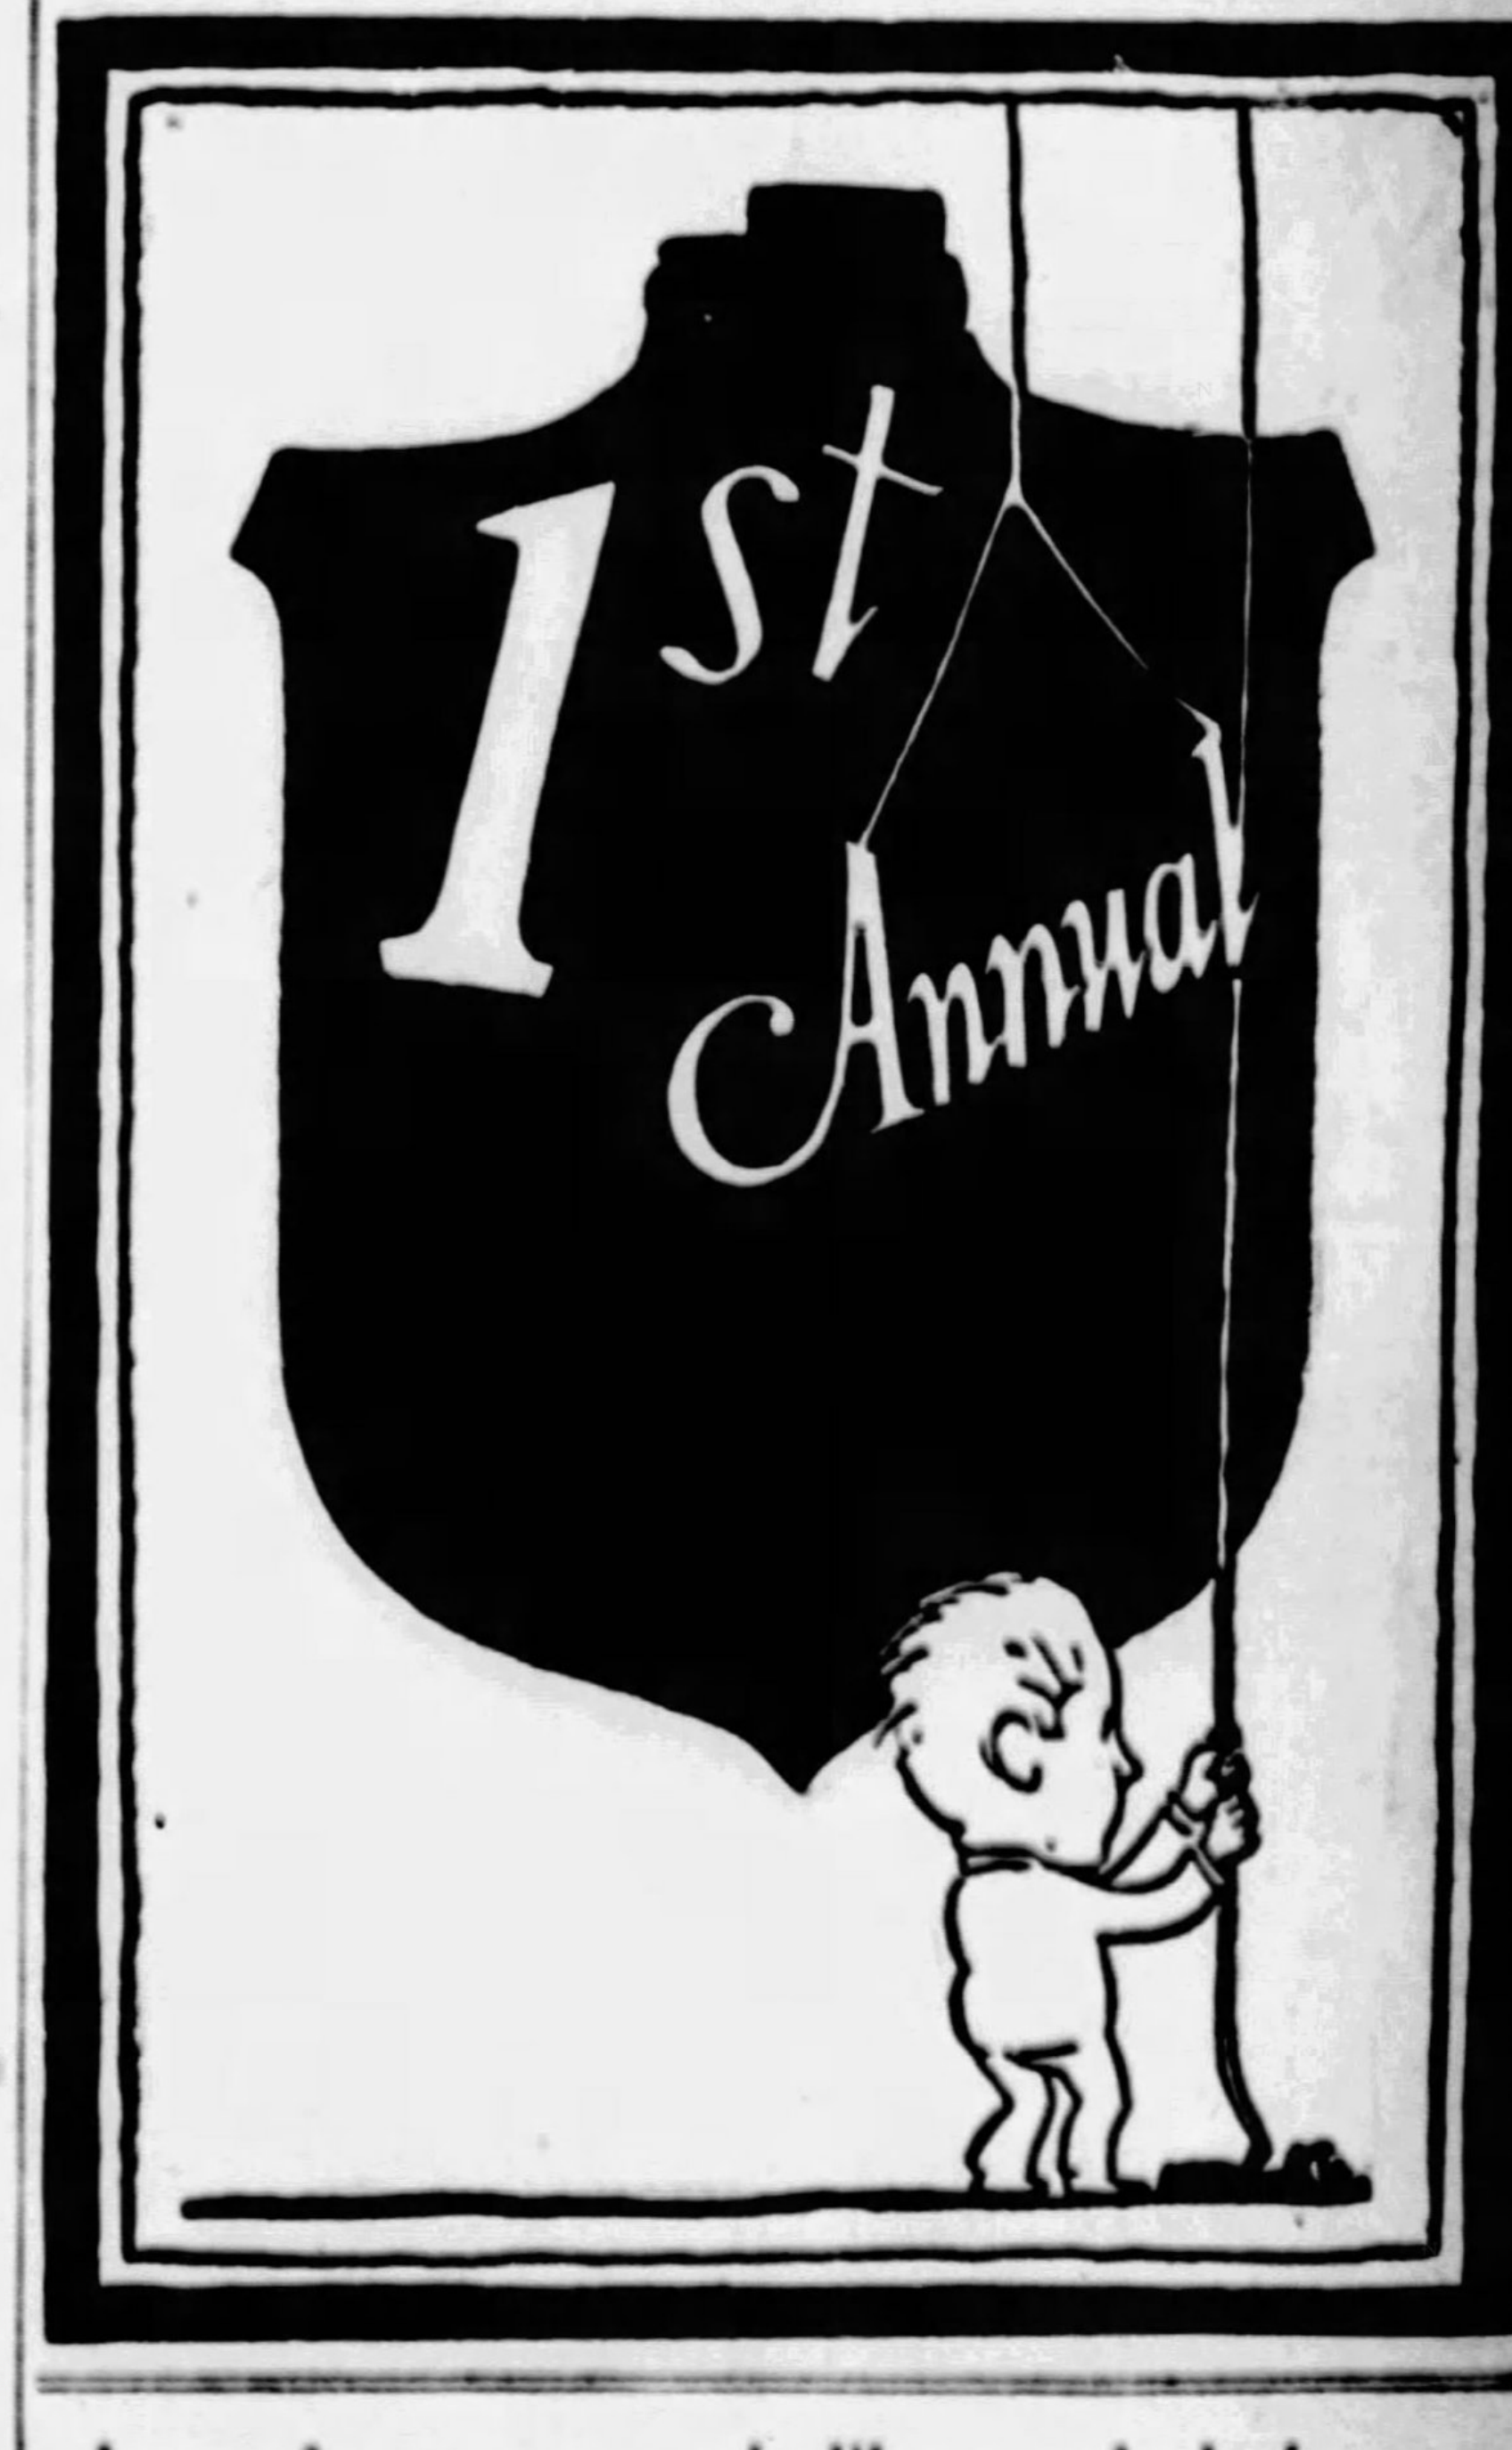
Zilatone Results Guaranteed

After several years experimenting through physicians, as well as the laity, we find that we can safely guarantee that Zilatone will promptly correct most any disorder of the stomach, liver, pancreas or bowels—if taken according to directions. Moreover it prevents gall stones and aids in the removal of those now forming.

Buy a 60-cent package (40 tablets) Read the 12-page leaflet enclosed. If you are not convinced that Zilatone is worthy of your full confidence—take it right back and get your money.

Zilatone is sold on this money-back principle by most all druggists in your neighborhood.

Zilatone is recommended and sold in this city by all May's Drug Stores and other live druggists.



A good newspaper is like good clothes—it makes everybody take notice. Your ads in The Sun-Telegraph should be in often!

UG SELLERS ERE GET TWO YEARS

Edward, alias "Turk" Moore, 45, and Joseph (Skinny) Murphy, 40, both of the North Side, yesterday were sentenced by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve two years each in the government penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for possessing and selling morphine in violation of the Harrison narcotic act. The jury was out five minutes.

The principal witness against the two men was a woman drug addict, who was brought from a North Side hospital. She told of purchasing 10 grains of morphine for $5 from the defendants in Moore's rooms in East Erie street on January 15.

Government narcotic agents testified that they found 160 grains of morphine in the men's rooms on the day the sale was made to the woman.

HE HAD BACKACHE DAY AND NIGHT

Ten Herbs Gave Relief, and Also Ended Chronic Constipation

"I had backache so badly, day and night, that I got very little rest," was the statement of Mr. Charles Schrantz, 613 Linden Street, Allentown, Pa., to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the popular medicine, Ten Herbs. "Finally, I felt so bad that I lost several weeks' work," continued Mr. Schrantz, who is a silk weaver. "I was so badly constipated I had to keep taking laxatives. Then my kidneys seemed to get out of order. I had to arise many times at night. I did not know which way to turn, as none of the medicines I tried did me any good whatever.

"I read about Ten Herbs in the papers, and after hearing you tell about the merits of your medicine, I bought a bottle. I soon found that I had at last found the proper medicine. Backache is gone, and my kidneys seem to be in good condition. My bowels are more regular than at any other time in my life. I am pleased to give Ten Herbs a recommendation."

Ten Herbs is a splendid mixture of natural medicinal ingredients, which cleanse the human system and drive out old poisons and impurities, which may have been collecting within the body for a long time, and which cause so much misery. Ten Herbs is used and highly recommended to relieve disorders of the stomach and liver, which are so common among modern people. This great natural medicine also benefits the kidneys, regulates the bowels, and has a soothing, correcting effect on the whole system, usually making one feel better in every way. Ten Herbs has helped others in this locality and why not you?

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

EWIS LASHES OPERATORS' STRIKE AD

ITS COMPANY'S STATEMENTS AS "MORE LIES"

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Answering Pittsburgh Coal Company advertisements appearing in Pittsburgh newspapers, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, today decla d that he union has "neither the means r the desire" to compete in an adrtisin campaign with the coal pany. He called the operators' ertisements "a continuation of well-known policy of publishglaring falsehoods." His full ment follows:

he United Mine Workers of ica has neither the means nor tre to compete in a newsadvertising campaign with id officers of the Pittsburgh mpany. The United States Senate has assumed jurisdiction of the matters of equity involved in the coal strike in Western Pennsylvania and will proceed with the formal investigation next week. The public will thus have an opportunity to determine the facts of the Pittsburgh situation from the sworn testimony which will be adduced before the tribunal of the Senate.

ASSAILS OPERATORS

"In the meantime, if W. G. Warden, chairman of the board of directors, and C. E. Lesher, executive vice president, desire to squander additional funds of the Pittsburgh Coal Company by continuing their well-known policy of publishing glaring falsehoods, the mine workers have no objection.

e past three years they dered many millions of nging to the stockhold- Pittsburgh Coal Com- eir forthcoming finan- f truthfully presented, he astounding manner e assets of this cor- ve been wasted by orant and incompetent management.

"No form of newspaper advertising can justify the un-Ameri working conditions prevailing the properties of the Pittsburgh oal Company nor can the spending of any amount of money in an dvertising campaign sustain the mmoral abrogation of agreement of which this company stands guilty."

LESHER DEFENDS AD

The foregoing dispatch was shown to M. Lesher, and he was told that if he cared to answer Mr. Lewis' charges or to comment on them The Sun-Telegraph would be glad to publish his statement and to give it equal prominence.

"About all that Lewis says," said Mr. Lesher, "is that we have been publishing falsehoods at the stockholders' expense, and I hardly see how I can answer him except by denying it.

"I might lambaste the committee some more. Lewis calls it a tribunal, but I can hardly see how it can be called that, when its members have already committed themselves to the extent of saying that our mining towns are worse than swine pens, and that the United Mine Workers must be recognized.

"I suspect that Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, wrote Lewis' statement. He is the union's press agent, and had to do something about our charges in our advertisements. The union probably will spend more money in telegraph tolls, in answering the advertisements, than the advertisements ave cost us. Did you ask Lewis for this statement?"

Mr. Lesher was told that it had been requested.

Babe Born Feb. 29, Out of Luck For 4 Years

As late returns trickled in today it was indicated that the earliest Allegheny county baby of February 29, that date which appears only once each four years, was a girl born to Mrs. Walter C. Adler, of 347 McKinley avenue, Avalon, in the Suburban General Hospital.

It was 12:15 a. m. Wednesday when the Adler lady was deposited in the Bellevue hospital by a long-beaked bird.

MESSENGER FALLS DEAD

With a telegram grasped in his hand, Ernest Phares, 38, of 606 Suismon street, North Side, a messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Company, fell dead last mid-night as he was about to deliver it at 402 Chalfont street.

"I have pleurisy" the messenger gasped as he fell into the arms of P. E. Evans of 9 Thielman street, Carrick, as the latter opened the door. Evans summoned Dr. B. D. White of 427 Charles street, but the messenger was dead. The body was removed to the county morgue.

The statues were taken rom the hall of the house and the coats from a living room. The robber is believed to have used a key to enter the house.

WOMAN LEAVES $12,000 BUT NAMES NO HEIRS

In a will which she signed on February 10, just 18 days before her death, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Getty of Summit avenue, Bellevue, named an executor for her $12,000 estate, but no heirs, it became known today when the document was filed for probate. Under the intestate laws the estate goes to an only son, W. F. Getty.

BOOTLEG TAX PLACED AT $500,000

The drive launched by United States District Attorney John D. Meyer to collect internal revenue taxes, added penalities, from 150 convicted bootleggers is expected to place between $400,000 and $450,000 in the government treasury.

It is the first attempt on a large scale in this district to force violators of the national prohibition and internal revenue laws to pay the revenue taxes, and added penalties, on contraband whisky and other spirituous liquors and high test beer in possession of the defendants at the time the liquors were seized by prohibition authorities. In the prosecution of statements of claim, the district attorney's office is represented by William J. Aiken, an assistant district attorney.

The first six statements of claims filed late yesterday by Attorney Aiken seek judgments, ranging from $560.56 to $1,695.54. In each claim there is a specific penalty of $500 under the prohibition law, and a series of various descriptions of taxes under the same law and under the internal revenue act, in addition to the $25 tax imposed upon retail liquor dealers.

Other statements of claim will be filed each day until the present list of 150 is completed. The government will seek judgments ranging from $3,000 to $15,000 against bootleggers, who have been classed as wholesale dealers. The claims against the "retail" dealers will average more than $1,200, it was said.

The defendants will have 15 days in which to file answer to the claims, and upon failure to pay the assessments if judgments are obtained by the government, any properties they possess will be levied upon by United States marshals.

CUTS THROAT; WILL RECOVER

With 60 stitches closing a long wound in his throat, inflicted by himself last night, police say, with a safety razor blade, John Rott, 22, of 4048 Penn avenue, was reported "improved" at the St. Francis Hospital today.

Out of work for several months, Rott recently was compelled to break up his home, he going to his mother's house, and his wife taking their baby to her parents' home. Last night, police say, Rott attempted to "end it all."

*Can you afford to neglect this warning?

IN ORDER to settle any question as to what constitutes the real danger to teeth and gums, and also what is the best means of protection, E. R. Squibb & Sons caused an investigation to be made throughout the entire dental profession—the 50,000 practicing dentists of this country.

These men gave answers which express the opinion of the dental profession—the only real authority obtainable. They say that:

(1) Acids are the most frequent cause of tooth decay and irritated gums.

(2) The most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet—known as The Danger Line.

(3) The best product known to neutralize acids in the mouth is Milk of Magnesia.

These answers constitute a warning which cannot be ignored. They prove that it is not enough merely to brush the teeth. You must also use a dentifrice which can neutralize the dangerous acids.

Squibb's Dental Cream brings real protection. For Squibb's contains more than 50% of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. The Milk of Magnesia neutralizes acids in your mouth. And particles of it lodge at The Danger Line, giving protection after every brushing.

Squibb's Dental Cream meets every requirement of a correct dentifrice. It cleans thoroughly—soothes tender gums—relieves sensitive teeth—contains no harsh abrasives. At all druggists—40c for a large tube.

CHILDREN GIVEN SPECIAL CARE

No one is safe!

Actress, farmer or army officer—every one of us, no matter who we are, may offend unknowingly

The truth about body odor

HOW distressing it is to meet people with body odor.

You'd certainly hate to feel you ever offended like that.

Yet no one is entirely safe from body odor. To live, we must perspire—all year round. And in winter, body odor is more noticeable than ever—because of indoor activities, warmer, stuffier rooms.

Why the offender doesn't know he's guilty

Even on coldest days, our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste each 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether visible or invisible, is always odorous. And it spares no one. Men or women—rich or poor—all may offend if they neglect precautions.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coldest weather.

Body odor more noticeable in winter—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its mild antiseptic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

For, once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it.

No fear of body odor now

That's why, very often, even fastidious people—thinking they are safe—offend and don't know it! Yet it's easy now to avoid embarrassment. Just wash and bathe frequently with the most delightful toilet soap in the world—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same blandly antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

And how clear and fresh Lifebuoy keeps complexions! Little wonder millions favor it for all toilet purposes.

You will like its hygienic scent

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

DITHRICH TO CONFER ON DAMAGE CLAIMS

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich has been granted permission by the County Commissioners to confer with 16 property owners who have filed damage claims against the county. The claims total $58,390 and resulted when the State Highway Department made improvements on the Freeport and Imperial roads and Steubenville pike.

The roads are state-owned, but when repairs are made, the county must stand all property damage claims. All of the claims are for damages done to houses.

FORGETS TO DROP COAT LEAVING STORE; HELD

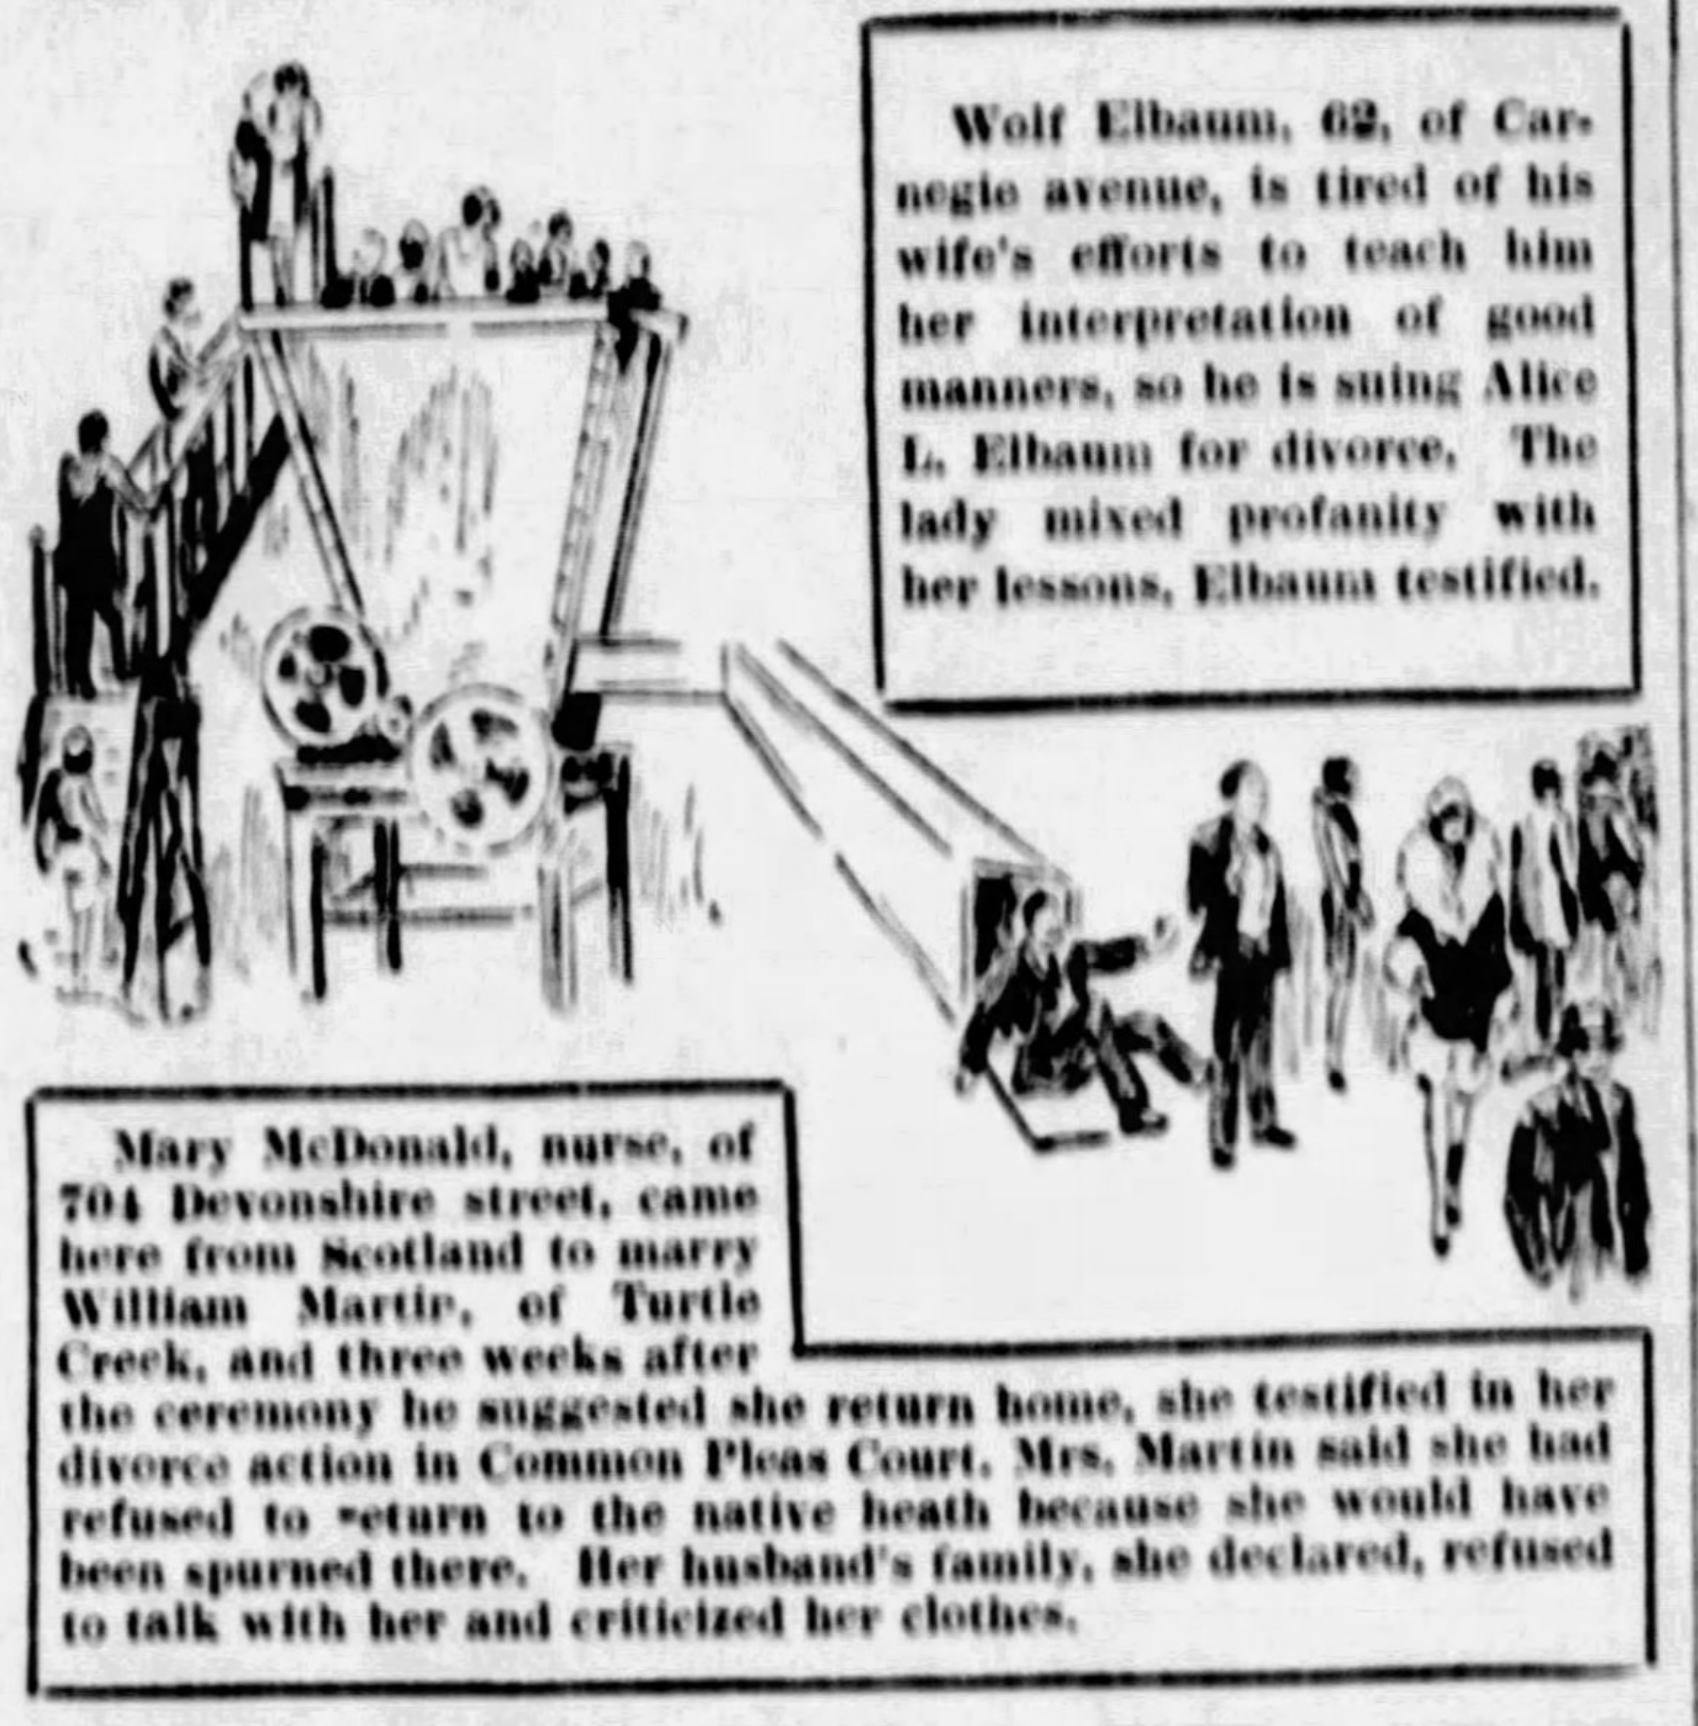
Mrs. C. H. Merz, 37, of 215 Hawthorne street, Canonsburg, examining a fur coat in a downtown department store, stepped outside with the coat to hunt her daughter, who had run out as the "closing" bell rang, she told Magistrate John Orie in Morals Court today. She was held for court on a larceny charge.

MORE TIME ON ELEVATOR EDICT LIKELY

Additional time probably will be allowed department stores and office building to install automatic inner gates on all passenger elevators as required by a councilmanic ordinance passed last April, it developed following a hearing on the subject yesterday. Representatives of the Retail Merchants' Association, who had introduced a bill repealing the ordinance, stated yesterday that while the required installation would work a hardship at this time the safety devices eventually will be installed.

H. L. Ley, head of the building inspection bureau, reported that two department stores installed the gates and later disconnected them because they slowed up elevator service. The devices, he said, are installed in 14 buildings and missing in 76.

THE DIVORCE MILL



Wolf Elbaum, 62, of Carnegie avenue, is tired of his wife's efforts to teach him her interpretation of good manners, so he is suing Alice L. Elbaum for divorce. The lady mixed profanity with her lessons, Elbaum testified.

Mary McDonald, nurse, of 704 Devonshire street, came here from Scotland to marry William Martir, of Turtle Creek, and three weeks after the ceremony he suggested she return home, she testified in her divorce action in Common Pleas Court. Mrs. Martin said she had refused to return to the native heath because she would have been spurned there. Her husband's family, she declared, refused to talk with her and criticized her clothes.

CALLS WELLSBURG DIVORCE GATE

Judge Richard W. Martin of Common Pleas Court regards Wellsburg, W. Va., marriages as almost a sure gateway to the divorce court. Hearing a number of such cases yesterday, he declared that if it were in his power he would refuse to grant decrees to couples who go to that Gretna Green.

Commenting on one case before him, he declared that 70 per cent of the cases he has heard in Common Pleas Court this month involved couples who had gone to West Virginia to be married.

Judge Martin has been hearing from five to 10 divorce cases daily.

STEWART PURCHASES ANOTHER PAPER

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., March 1.—The Beaver Valley Daily News, published at New Brighton, eldest paper in Beaver county, has been sold to John L. Stewart, of Washington, Pa., publisher of the Washington Observer and Reporter and the Beaver Falls Tribune and Beaver Times. The News, founded about 75 years ago, has been published by Assemblyman Willard S. Reader, whose father established it. The News will be consolidated with the Tribune, with Mr. Reader in charge.

MARSHAL DIAZ FOLLOWS HAIG IN DEATH

ROME, March 1.—(AP.)—When Field Marshal Earl Haig, of Great Britain, died recently, Marshal Armando Diaz, who commanded the armies of Italy in the World War, exclaimed:

"Well, he is the first of us to go; who will be next?"

Today of the four Allied commanders only Marshal Foch, of France, and Gen. Pershing, of the United States, are alive. Marshal Diaz died yesterday at the age of 67.

Tenacious and daring, this Italian soldier drove the invader back after the debacle on the Isonzo front in October, 1917. A year later he struck the blow that broke the Austrian front, driving a great wedge into the Austrian line and soon Austria was suing for peace.

To the Italian people he was known as "Il Duce of Victory."

The body of the warrior lay in state today, fully uniformed. A number of field officers, who were wounded in the World War, mounted a guard of honor around the casket. King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini sent special emissaries to convey their condolences to the family.

Marshal Diaz held the portfolio of war under Mussolini for a time, but was obliged to surrender it because of his health.

OU'VE known them . . . women o start out in life so radiantly esh and alive that it seems as if hey have more than their share of youth and beauty. Then something happens. Almost before you know their bloom and freshness have e. . . . Youth without health! What a pathetic thing it is! Pinched, n cheeks and pain-dulled eyes hen, by every right, they should just beginning to live!

Constipation wrecks health and ppiness for thousands of women d men. Stealing beauty. Thieving vitality. Killing pe with despair. It is the cause of untold disease l suffering.

And more's the pity when it can be so surely prevented. So quickly relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

It takes ALL-BRAN to be 100% effective

llogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk—and it is "bulk" at relieves constipation. It absorbs moisture and arries it through the alimentary canal. Exercising he intestines as nature intended. Gently distending them—sweeping out poisons and wastes. In a part-bran product, there is seldom enough bulk to do this work effectively. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran — and accomplishes 100% results.

Totally unlike habit-forming drugs

ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than dangerous pills and laxatives—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased, and sometimes injure the system. A naturally healthful cereal. Good to eat—and good for you! Delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added for variety. Soaking a few moments in milk makes its nutlike flavor all the tastier. Use it in cooking too. Tempting recipes on every package. Sprinkle in into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal . . . for health's sake!

Keep a package in the home. Serve it regularly. But be sure it's genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Don't take chances with part-bran substitutes which, at best, can be but partially effective—and often accomplish nothing. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

JAWORSKI GANGSTER GUILTY

Stanley Bodziakowski, 33, who yesterday was convicted of robbery for his part in the Coverdale holdup last March 11, when an armored pay truck was dynamited and $104,000 stolen, will be sentenced tomorrow by Judge Ambrose B. Reid. The jury deliberated 20 minutes.

Testimony was introduced to show that Bodziakowski was a member of the "Flathead Gang," responsible for numerous holdups in mining towns here, and that he had received $14,500 as his share of the loot. He spent the money in Europe and Montreal, where he was arrested last November. A confession said to have been made by the defendant following his arrest was introduced by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who was in charge of the prosecution.

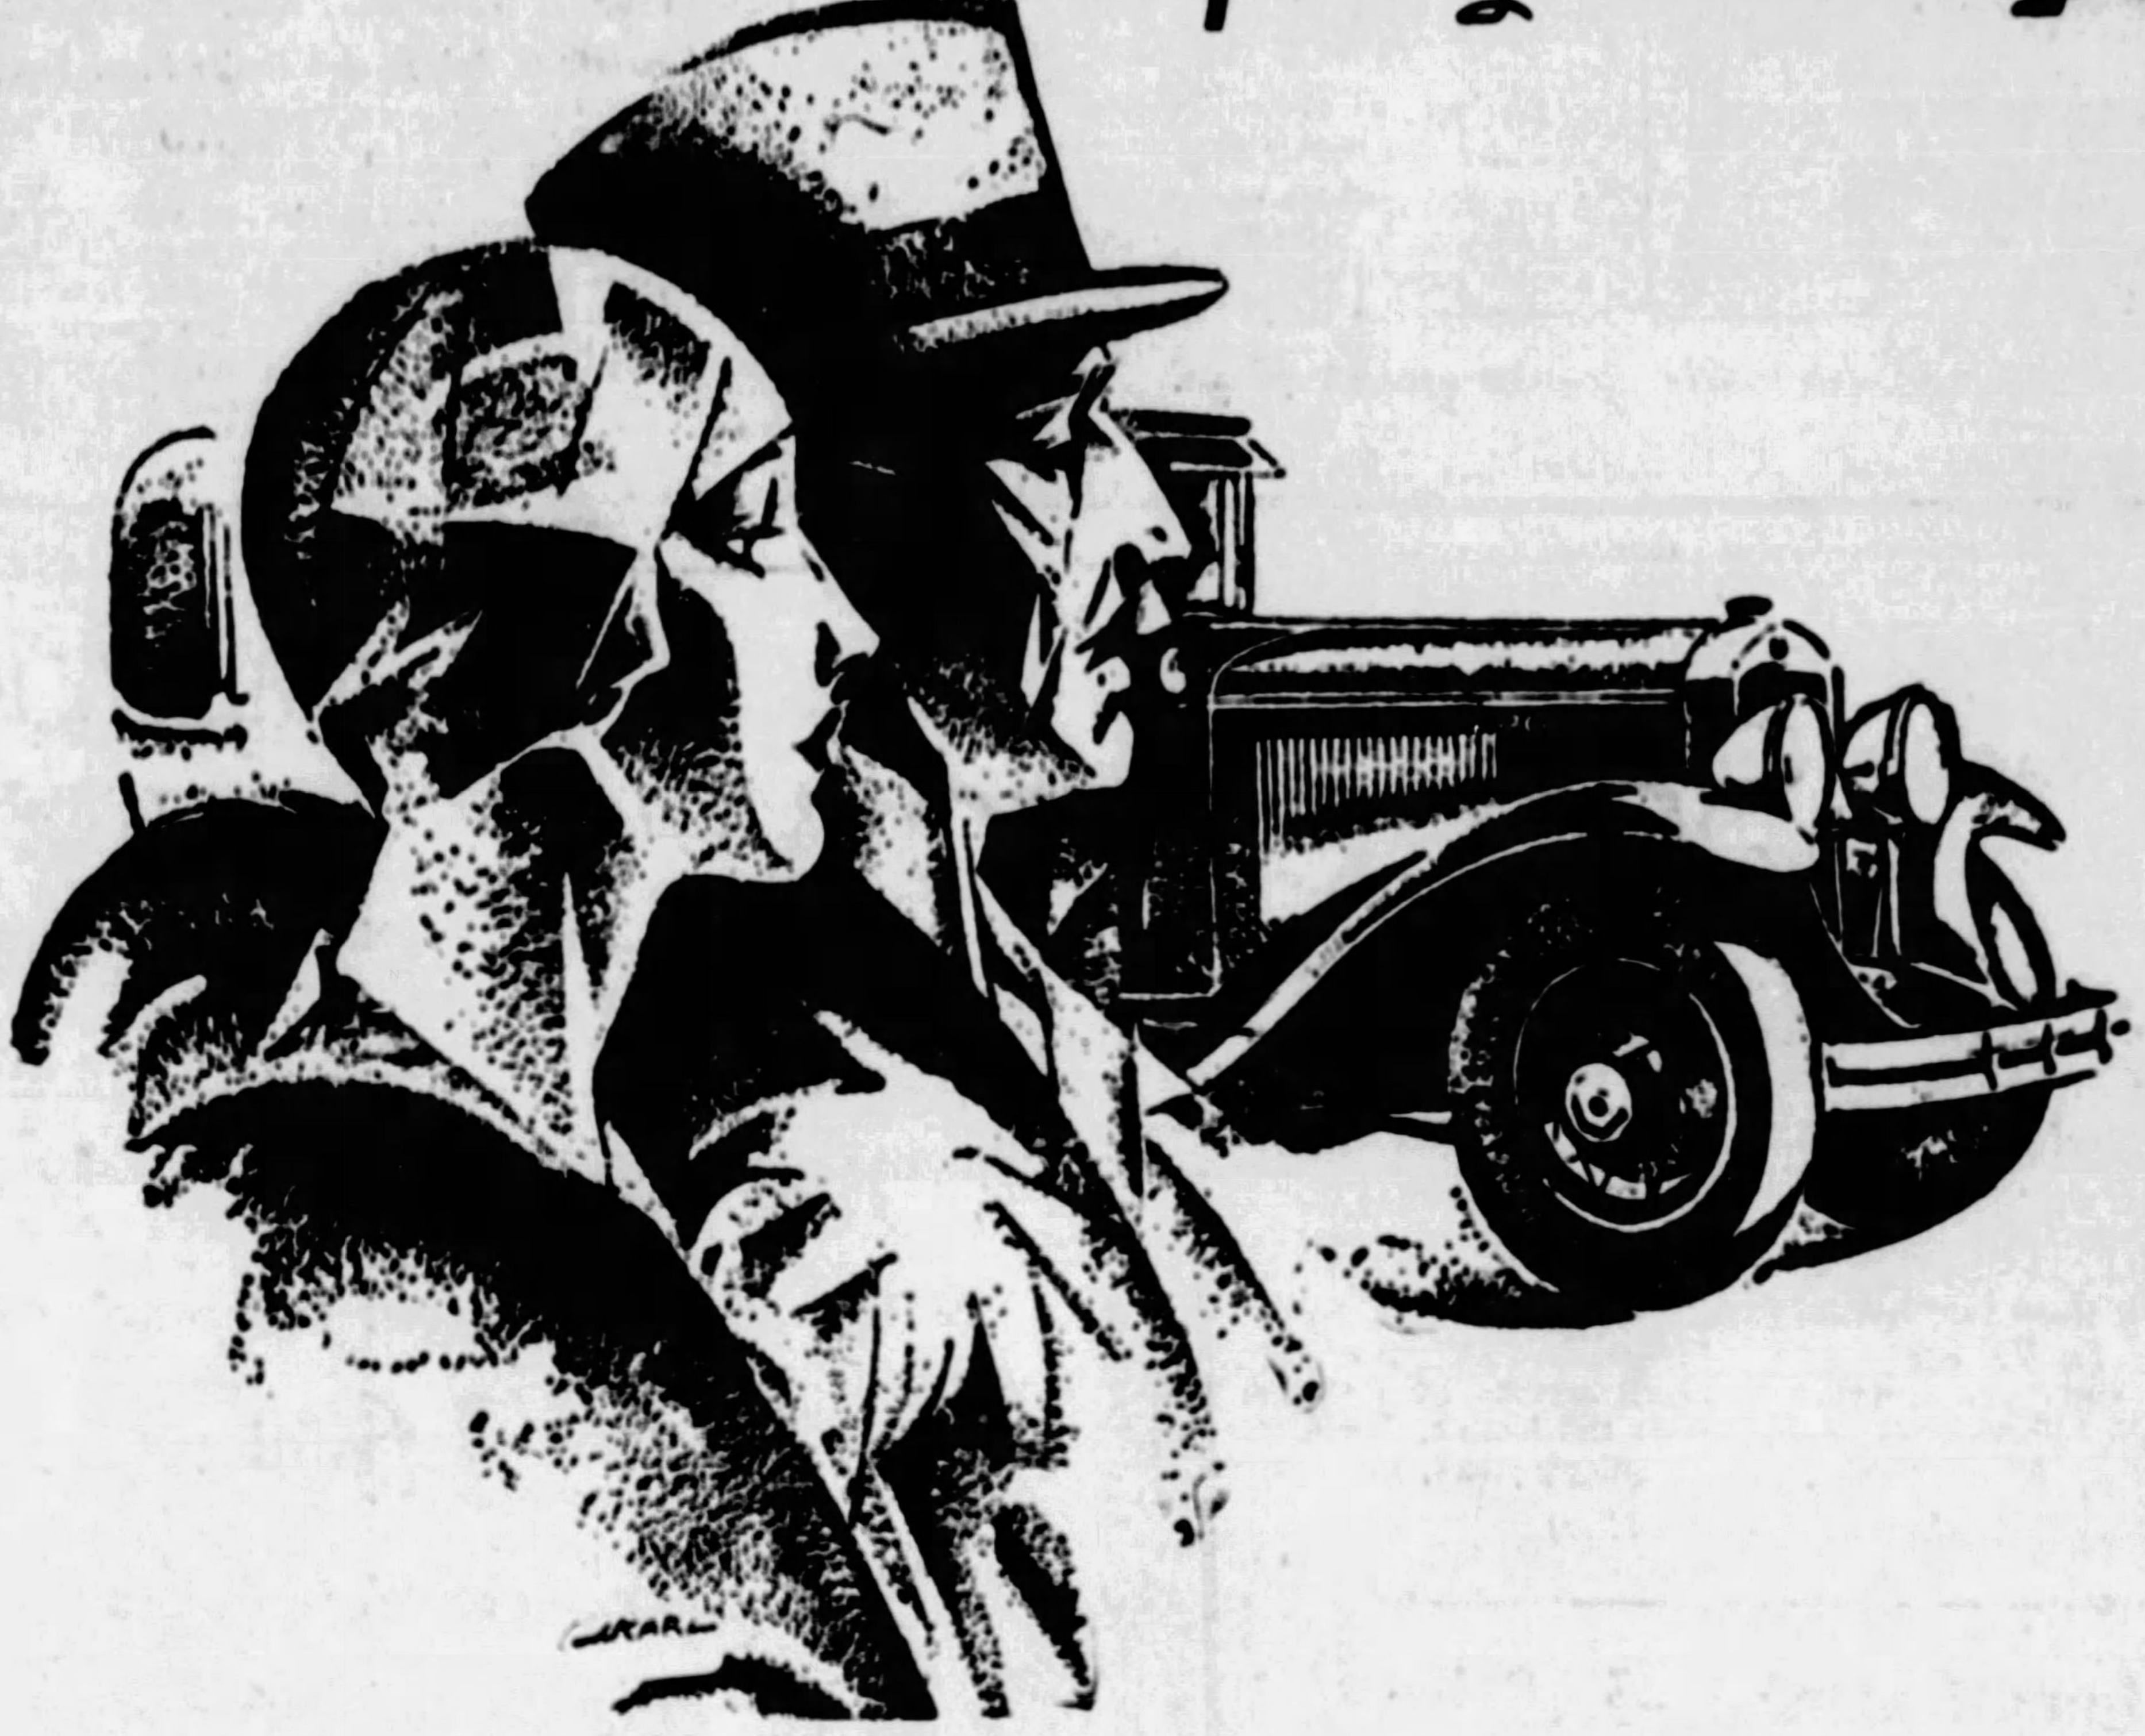
LA SALLE Anniversary Week ... and ... CADILLAC Spring Showing



THE Cadillac Motor Car Company invites you to an automobile salon of national importance—the countrywide Spring Showing of Cadillac and La Salle Cars—opening Saturday, March 3rd.

The occasion has a special significance in that it marks the first anniversary of the introduction of La Salle—the most spectacular success in the history of fine car manufacture.

This spring presentation will reveal the most attractive, the most extensive and the most complete line of fine cars ever shown by any manufacturer. It will include a wide variety of custom built bodies by Fisher and Fisher-Fleetwood, representing the very finest examples of the body builders' art.

During this week special arrangements have been made, by all Cadillac-La Salle dealers, for Cadillac-La Salle demonstrations. Everyone is cordially invited to take advantage of this opportunity to prove to his own satisfaction the outstanding performance characteristics of a Cadillac-built car—its relaxed, restful riding qualities; its freedom from vibration; its remarkable acceleration; its amazing smoothness.

A single glance at the galaxy of fine cars in this newest Cadillac-La Salle showing, a single ride in any one of them—and you will agree that, while a motor car may be only a motor car, a Cadillac-built car—whether it be a La Salle or Cadillac—is always a Cadillac.

IDGET SAVES GIRL FROM 165-LB. ANNOYER

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore MEHERI

Heinie Wants Jerry to Cut The Jazz and Marry Him

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good-looking and charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her mother, Marza, warns her that he will make an unsatisfactory husband. Heinie Ross makes love to Jerry in vain. Rhodes shows admiration for her.

"WELL, you see I'd just come from a big wow that turned out to be the dog's dinner. You know—everybody getting tight as ticks: all the fellows forgetting which rib they'd brought and not caring so long as they had one—anyone. Not a bit exciting after 10 years.

"You looked so awfully clean and breezy. And you laughed as though you meant it. Very captivating to one seeking a man from the big open spaces where a HE is a HE. And not just an animated gin-flask."

"So that's what you're looking for? What will you do when you find him? Marry him and lose him?"

She twinkled roguishly: "I suppose for the preservation of romance the wise thing would be to give him one long, delicious immortal kiss and rush to a convent consecrating myself to a memory. Like Heloise."

"You have very charming solutions for this little problem of life. First to relieve you of boredom you plan to have 17 children. And to keep love you have the sweet expedient of renouncing it."

"Is there any other way? People who marry it always smear it. Imagine having your man coming up the front steps, grouchily, hanging his overcoat in the hall, sidling in with a grumpy, 'Hello, ole lady. Dinner ready?' Oh, wouldn't you love years, and drab years, of that!"

She sat above him on the slope, looking down at him. Now her lips rippled off joyously: "You'd never do that, would you?"

He reached up, would have pulled her to him.

She blew a large puff of smoke in his face. "Not today. But thank you just the same. I've sworn off!"

"Why?"

"I don't exactly know why. But sometimes, like now, sitting on the top of this enchanting hill, the beautiful water down there and that cloud like a silver hope sailing the blue, I get gulpy longing for things. You know—songs of the lark, flash of the moon. Something awfully high and gorgeous. And I want to run after it—wait for it—work for it."

"You think this SOMETHING exists?"

She looked straight in his eyes and smiled—a quick, tight, little smile like a frightened child's. "Yes! Don't you? It must. We all have the dream."

"Yes—the dream." He looked extremely young, almost as fervent as the girl. "But doesn't that prove us a race of insane optimists? Everybody hopes, and everybody is disappointed.

"Why, then, should I believe that somewhere is the perfect mate . . . the girl with appeal and spirit; brains and beauty; fire and substance? Believe in her, and that she's waiting for me—this glory-woman of the horizon! And we'll never weary, I of her and she of me? How on earth would I rate her if she does exist!

"No, girl! The only way that dream works out is SUCCESSIVELY. You find charm in one; beauty in a second; intelligence in a third. And so on ad infinitum. Take as you go. Riding the crest all the way!"

She snapped her fingers in his nose: "You know where that trail ends? Unless you're blind as well as insane. It ends with you a paunch bellied, bald headed wet smack at the age of 45. I've seen millions of YOU. If that's what you are!"

He turned a slow, tickled glance upward: "You're the wisest kid I've ever met."

She grinned in his face: "I shouldn't be surprised if I am. I began my lessons of men and such in the cradle."

"And after nineteen years—." He turned to her with that teasing gleam. "Is it 19 or 9 you are?"

"Just like you—sometimes 24 and sometimes 4!"

"After nine or nineteen years you still believe in the lost ecstasy? Still think it's lurking behind one corner or the next?"

She regarded him with moist, eager young eyes. "Yes!"

Her lips parted, eyes softly purple. He thought he had never seen anyone so lovely as this dark slip of a thing, all flame and sweetness. Never a mouth so winsome! never a laugh so gay.

"Saxon, so do you!"

He took her neat brown hands, pressed them impetuously in his. "Wouldn't it be fun to find it? Let's start after it—you and I—east of the sun, west of the moon, somewhere that's nowhere we'll meet up with it."

He pulled her to her feet laughing. They went down the slope together, arm in arm, the dogs coming after them in merry dashes.

"You're a darling thing," said Saxon Rhodes. "And very bright. Have you read all the books you quote—Heloise, Asmodeus, Neitzsche?"

"Indeed, yes! And thousands more. You'd be surprised. I think a lot when I'm alone by myself in the dark."

"That doesn't happen very often, does it?"

"It used to—when I was little. I had whole years to myself. I often read all night. All of Zola and Maupassant before I was 14."

"And who let you do that?"

"Myself! I've always done what I pleased. Ever since I was 9. And I'm always going to!" She flung her head up in vivid laughing challenge, feeling herself made of lighted joy. "Such a heavenly day, Saxon—such a heavenly, heavenly morning!"

Jerry, dressing for dinner that night, whistled and sang.

"Because of Saxon?" asked Marza.

"Because of life!" Isn't it wondrous, wondrous!"

"Yes. As long as you keep the upper hand. Don't let your experiments with life become Life's experiments with YOU. You always lose. Give your heart to love as much as you will. But keep your head. A woman needs it. ALL THE TIME."

The girl smiled on and on, hearing nothing that Marza said; caring nothing for it.

"But only for that. You're a darling!" and the chuckling happiness of his tanned face etched in laughter and sunlight.

At the dance Heinie dogged her. "Have a heart, Jerry! You've hardly looked at me today. You went off playing golf with him. The whole afternoon!"

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D.

Emotional Behavior Gets Kick From Adrenin; It Moves Cowards To Fight, Saves in Emergency

Readers of The Sun-Telegraph yesterday learned the astonishing capacity of the thyroid, best known of our glands, to serve their possessors well or ill. Everyone knows that, enlarged, they cause goiter, but if they are deficient, Author Dorsey informed, they may make idiotic dwarfs. The adrenals, which produce the most powerful drug in the human body, also were described.

Sugar is the Best Fighting Fuel

CHAPTER XIX.

IN CRISES our body goes on a "war footing"—as our country did a few years ago. Piano manufacturers began to make airplanes. Artists turned from painting corset advertisements to camouflaging battleships. Our sugar rations were cut that the fighters might have enough. The entire plant of the nation turned from peaceful pursuits to speed up the fuel for the engines of war. Life had become a dog-fight.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

Ever try to take a bone from a dog? Or observe a cat when a dog suddenly appears? Or a mother when some one injures her child? How do you feel when you are "horror-stricken," "sick with disgust," "paralyzed with fear," "crazy with pain," or so mad you "choke?" Tongue cleaving to the roof of the mouth, "cold sweat," pupils of the eyes dilated, pounding heart, hurried breathing, hair on end, muscles of face and especially of the lips trembling and twitching; such are among the obvious symptoms of pain, of horror, of fear, etc.

Adrenin Gives a Kick

We recognize many emotional states and are subject to them in varying intensity: pain, anger, fear, rage, horror, sorrow, anxiety, grief, terror, disgust. An insulting word may literally alter our entire nature. We feel these states; we observe the results in others. What is not so obvious is that the body itself often undergoes profound physiological change.

The mechanism by which our natures can be suddenly altered is to be found in the middle or sympathetic division of the autonomic nervous system and—according to the theory—the secretion of the medulla of the adrenal gland. The way these two work together and the striking, sudden and far-reaching consequences of their actions, form the basis for Cannon's claim in 1914 that adrenin is nature's reply to the crises, the unexpected do-or-die emergencies of living animals. Emotional behavior gets its kick from adrenin.

With adrenin, cowards may fight for their lives, brave men may surpass themselves, and all of us can run as we never ran before; or shed tears of sorrow over the loss of friends.

Making the Fight

There are three divisions of the autonomic nervous system. The upper, or cranial, is concerned with the joys and sorrows of life. Its nerves conserve the body building up reserves and fortifying the body for times of crises. By narrowing the pupils they shield the eye from too much light. By slowing the heartbeat they give the heart muscles longer periods for rest. By causing the mouth to water they set the juice flowing and supply muscular tone for the alimentary canal's ceaseless movements. The lower, or sacral, division covers the emptying mechanisms of large intestine and urogenital system; relief and comfort acts.

Between cranial and sacral is the sympathetic division—enormously important. It dilates the pupils of the eyes, hurries up heartbeat, stands hairs on end by causing each smooth hair muscle to contract, opens sweat glands (pouring out excess heat), stops movements in stomach and intestine, releases sugar (the best fighting fuel) from the liver, and releases adrenin. The medulla of the adrenal, alone of all the endocrine glands, is connected with the autonomic nervous system.

Here is the point. Adrenin itself, injected into the blood, will dilate pupils, stand hairs on end, constrict blood vessels, stop the vegetative activities in alimentary canal, and release sugar from the liver. Remove the liver from the body, keep it alive artificially; adrenin will cause it to release sugar.

Friend in Emergency

The real business of the adrenal glands, according to Cannon's theory, is emergency function. When we must fight or run for our lives, our body has no time to fool with a mouth watering for its appetite or several yards of alimentary canal activity. The test tubes for chemical action, and the fires to keep these actions going, must be neglected for the moment. Their energy must be made available for action in the big striped muscles of the motor fighting-or-fleeing mechanism.

When a joy is so strong or a sorrow or a disgust so deep that it breaks over the threshold of the cranial division and enters the sympathetic, we lose our appetite; no saliva, no gastric or pancreatic juice, no movement in the intestine. Even an empty stomach stops growling and holds its peace when war is on.

And war is on when any of life's instinctive acts with emotional trimmings are thwarted. Anger. The body is prepared to fight. All its life long it has had to know how to kill, how to avoid death. It has had to learn to count on its muscles and its nerves when the test comes. Adrenin is supposed to be the answer.

Real Pepper-Up

According to Cannon's theory, adrenin bucks us up. It speeds up the heartbeat. Draws blood from spleen, kidneys, intestines and other inhibited organs of the abdomen—thus also reducing their size. Drives blood to the skeletal muscles, brain and lungs. Relaxes the smooth muscles of the tiny air sacs in the lungs, thus facilitating the exchange of carbon dioxide waste for the greater oxygen required in great effort. Orders the liver to give the blood more sugar, the optimum source of muscle energy. Drives fatigue from the muscles. Contracts the blood vessels of the skin and makes the blood coagulate more quickly, so lessening our liability of bleeding to death in case of wound.

Adrenin wins battles and makes men brave; lack of it may make them cowards.

It has been urged against Cannon's hypothesis that it is not yet conclusively proved. What is proved is that without adrenals—or accessory adrenals—no man lives; with adrenin far-reaching changes occur which, combined, transform the vegetation body into a fighting machine. Nor is there any doubt as to what our emotions do to us. The role that Cannon ascribes to the adrenals is reasonable and plausible; it has proved to be a working hypothesis in biology.

FELLS GIRL'S ANNOYER; 'MASHER' FINED $25

Miss Ethel Wagner, 19, of 120 East North avenue, confronted in darkened Ark way, North Side, last night by Joseph Ryan—height, 5 feet 11 inches; weight, 165 pounds—was saved from harm by Kenneth Behannon—height, 5 feet; weight, 100 pounds.

Behannon grabbed Ryan, beat him into submission, and then dragged, pushed and tugged him three blocks to the Allegheny Police Station.

TELLS OF TRAP

In Morals Court today, Behannon, 23, of 944 West North avenue, hardly tall enough to peer over the top of the magistrate's desk, told how he had been talking to Miss Wagner, how she had left him to go home and a short time later came running back with the story that a man had chased her from Ark way.

Behannon told her to retrace her path into the alley, with him following. As Ryan again showed himself, the midget tackled him and proceeded to the police station.

Ryan, 34, of 814 Sandusky street, said he had been drinking and did not remember anything. He was fined $25 by Magistrate John Orie.

WILD DRIVERS CRASH INTO 2 HOUSES

Two residences on the North Side were damaged early today by reckless drivers whose automobiles crashed into them. In both cases the drivers left without giving their names and neither made reports to police. Joseph Davlis, 28, of 1133 Goettman street, was arrested today as the driver of one of the machines, charged with violating the automobile laws.

The home of L. A. Bonderhard, 2904 Perrysville avenue, was damaged to the extent of $200 by a large machine that smashed the entrance. The front steps of a house at 1928 Lowrie street were torn away by another automobile. Davlis is accused of being the driver in the second case, although he denies driving his car at that time.

"GAS" STATION HELD UP

Police and detectives today are seeking a holdup man who late last night entered the Waverly Oil and Gas station, Manchester and Galveston avenues, and fled after robbing Fred Smith, the attendant, of a $45 watch, $1 in change and rifling the cash register of $45.

Warning Smith, the bandit ran down Galveston avenue toward the Manchester Bridge. Smith called North Side police by telephone and informed them of the holdup.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

"YOU see," said our Pittsburgh friend in the bond busine prompted by no motive except that he wanted us to be eve olly wealthy, "everyone eats bread so this baking company stock I'm telling you about is bound to go pretty big."

We knew nothing about the stock market, but running over tally a list of families we knew we found there was not one that not eat bread.

BUT it appeared that sometime after we purchased our modest block of stock everyone took to eating cake and doughnuts. At least that seemed the only plausible explanation for the flop that stock took. Earnestly we advised by written word and by verbal exhortation on the life-building qualities of white, brown and rye breads, but the nation was set on getting indigestic through a sweet tooth.

THEREAFTER, said we, when bread would not rise we put o in only those stocks that the greatest cynics in Fourth avenue approve. So, recently, we purchased a small block of stock in the largest oil company in the world. Oil and gas always needed, we figured, and then the next day an inconsiderate West Elizabeth announced that he was working on a fuelless engi

It begins to look as if at the time we decided to buy bank people will dispense with money as a medium of exchange and back to the old system of trading a cow for so much meat.

It always seems, the Husbands' Protective As reported in its last message, that the vacuum sweeper manage low the husband from room to room.

SOMETIMES we have figured that the buzzing of the vacu sweepers might be eliminated for the benefit of the bands through the simple process of the wives getting on hands and knees and doing most of the cleaning by hand.

CHAPTER V.

ATE that momentous night Jerry stood at the window. listened to music drifting through the garden, vague yet haunting, as distant music always is. Like the piercing-sweet song in her heart.

She was alone—a slim, dark shadow like an eager boy with her hair short and wind-blown. Over her forehead and making her eyes that shadowy purple went a deep wave like the topknot Marza twined on her finger when Jerry was a very little girl.

"Oh, I love him," she thought, her whole being melting to liquid fire. "I shouldn't! I won't!" But she looked into the courtyard of flowers and wanted to rush out there murmuring to the trees of this heart-filling beauty. Press her face against moist, cool leaves.

Where was he? If he were but down there in the garden she would go out immediately, lose herself in his arms.

She wished he was out there—wished the whole world would vanish excepting Saxon Rhodes out there in the garden waiting and she rushing out to be lost in his arms.

In books: in dreams it happened so.

She couldn't endure the quiet, the hemmed-in feeling of the walls. She went tiptoeing across the room, down the long corridor into the shaded, leafy paths. She looked at the moon shining so goldenly and thought with an ardent sigh: "Oh, heavenly, heavenly!" And remembered Saxon's hand pointing to it as it shone on the hills; her face raised following the gesture; he, stooping, saying dear, mad things—kissing her.

Suddenly she laughed softly. She sank on the grass, leaning her head against a tree. "What a fine fool I've turned out to be! I suppose he's safe in bed, snoring like a steam engine!"

But she pictured him, tanned and happy, with the look of a sun-god about him; pictured him with his arm about her, the light thrilling eyes going into hers, drinking up her heart.

She thought, eagerly, helplessly: "I'm in for it! I'll never laugh this one off!"

A thousand years ago women loved in this fashion. Poor Manon Lescaut. And a thousand years hence they will still love so. As long as a human heart beats and the dream of supernal emotion remains.

To Jerry King the dream had come. She accepted it with all the aching fervor of 19; with the starry song of youth; forgetting utterly that she was Marza's daughter, sophisticated, open-eyed, wise as sin and just as old.

She thought of Saxon romantically—a being touched with glory—as long ago Priscilla thought of John Alden.

That first night when she peeked at him through the crack in the door she had felt this radiant distinction setting him apart, head and shoulders above all other men.

And she felt it cruelly, joyously as the weeks went on. She found herself wondering sharply how much Saxon cared. Was it just the enchantment of the spring? He was very popular and despite his lack of means much sought after.

Pretty girls—girls who had money and position wooed him. They kept his phone busy. Did he favor her among them all?

Saxon was young—just 24 and with a great ambition. He didn't mean to putter around all his life with pretentious little bungalows. He would be a builder of towers and cathedrals—lovely dreams in stone. Years of study needed for this—sojourns in Paris with courses at the Beaux Arts.

Florence Tells Lily That She Does Not Believe That She Is Bad

WHY, what had she been thinking of all along—to even dream that she could give herself to Staley Drummond? She belonged to Pat, and since he didn't want her, the only thing she could do was to stay with her mother and father. Or perhaps to get a job somewhere like Florence France.

. . . But never to marry Staley.

"Not even if Pat dies!" she promised herself. "Not even then would I marry Staley Drummond, or anybody else." It had taken this terrible sickness of Pat's to show her all these things, but she saw them now, as clearly as if she were looking into a mirror.

She knew why she had come to the house that night two weeks ago or more. She knew why she had stayed there when nobody in the house wanted her. She knew why she had worked with Elizabeth Ertz, even though Elizabeth Ertz was her greatest enemy. . . . Because to do all of these things meant that she could be near Pat.

Nobody mattered to her but him . . . And nothing mattered but him, not all of the things that Staley Drummond could buy for her. Automobiles, a great house, a country house, a riding horse, a whole jewel box of diamonds, a trip to Europe. They seemed as worthless as toys to her suddenly just as they had once before when she had first fallen in love with Pat.

"If only Pat lives that's all I want, and all I ask," she said, not to herself, but to Someone to whom she found herself wildly praying as she crouched there in the corner of the room. "Even if he marries that girl, still I want him to live!"

"Here! Go downstairs and heat some water!" Elizabeth Ertz said to her almost roughly once toward the end of the long night. "And put some baking soda in it, and rush back here with it!"

And Lily rushed. She carried it upstairs, but by the time she got there the doctor was outside the room and said that he wouldn't need it. Pat was resting for the time, and he wouldn't have him disturbed for anything.

"You can make some coffee for all of us, though, if you want to do something," he said in his fussy, kindly way, and she ran back to the kitchen and put the pot the stove.

While it was boiling she went upstairs to dress in one of the bungalow aprons that Florence had let her wear while she was in the house. Florence was getting into one of them herself.

"We may as well get up. It's 6 o'clock anyway," she yawned, "and none of us can sleep anyway, we're that excited and wrought up."

So she followed Lily downstairs and went out on to the front porch for the morning's milk and cream. She came back with it in one hand and the paper in the other.

"Looky here, Lily," she cried, flinging it down upon the kitchen table. "Here's your picture in the public print. You're getting to be famous or something."

Lily frowned and set down the cup of hot black coffe she had been sipping. . . . What was her picture doing in the morning paper, for goodness' sake?

She picked it up, and as she touched it the word "DIVORCE" seemed to shriek up at her from a headline above her photograph on the printed page. She took another look: "SOCIETY WOMAN PLANS TO DIVORCE CHAUFFER-HUSBAND."

She stared at it, speechless. . . . "But I told Staley to stop the suit," she wailed after four or five minutes. "I told him to . . . Oh, Florence, I don't want to marry Staley Drummond. I've been crazy, haven't I, to think that a couple of automobiles and a big house and a lot of clothes could take the place of—well, of I-don't-know-what."

"I guess you mean 'love,'" said the downright Florence, "I think you still love Pat, Lily. But you want to think things over—you know you did hate being poor with Pat. You don't want to forget that."

Lily shook her head and tried to remember how dull life had seemed in the days of the Derbyshire Road flat and the washing machine and the bills with no money to pay them.

"I told Ma you weren't as bad as Sadye Jetterson said you were," said Florence, after a minute. "I told her you were a good woman all along when everybody else said you were like the Frazier girl down the street. You know the one I mean—the one with bleached hair and all the paint?"

Lily did know. She had seen the Frazier girl sweep past the house in automobiles with one of her men friends beside her many a time—she remembered her perfectly. A bleached blonde with her face smeared with paint, her body fairly poured into too-tight black satin dresses, and with imitation pearls as big as white cherries around her neck. A brazen, shameless creature.

"Who said I was like the Frazier girl?" she demanded furiously.

"Everybody—almost," Florence blundered on.

CHAPTER LXVI.

"SO you all think I'm like the Frazier girl," Lily repeated, slowly, hating to believe her ears. "But I don't understand you. How could anyone compare me with that awful creature?"

Florence shrugged her shoulders.

"Don't blame it on me—I never said you were like her," she answered, still flushed with embarrassment. "It was the rest of them. You know, I've been around, Lily, working in some of the smart shops where all the women, or most of them, anyway, smoke and paint terribly, and don't wear any more clothes than the law allows. But Ma and Sadye Jetterson, and people like them, just class you with the Frazier girl because she's the only woman they know who does those things—except you."

Lily, still puzzled, shook her head. "Do they think I'm terrible because I don't wear a corset and because I smoke a cigaret?"

Florence gave a little laugh. "Well, that isn't all of it," she explained. "Sadye knew you were running around with Drummond, and she made it a point to drop in at your flat unexpectedly to try to find him there. She never did, of course, but she saw those furs that he gave you—and some flowers, and so on. And then, when my mother found his whisky flask among Pat's things she was terribly shocked. That was just the last straw—for Ma."

Lily kept very still for a long time after she had finished her explanation. . . . She began to see why Pat's family had thought she was like the Frazier girl. Because, in a way, she really was like her!

"I had more money and better clothes, but I was no better than she is when I was running around with Staley," she said to herself, suddenly, seeing herself through the eyes of the France family and respectable Sadye Jetterson. "Or not much better, at any rate."

Above the shining white sink on the other side of the kitchen hung a square looking glass. It was not very large and the glass was wavy, but it served Lily's purpose now.

She got up from her chair and walked over to it, leaning across the sink to study her face in its dim depths.

For weeks she had not thought of her looks. For weeks she had never so much as fluffed a powder puff across her nose or rubbed lipstick over her mouth. She had not had a "treatment" for her hair, nor a manicure for her nails. In her plain bungalow apron, borrowed from Florence, she was utterly unlike the painted, scented, curled and silken Lily that Staley Drummond loved and wanted to marry. She was beautiful, but she was beautiful in a different and less showy way than she ever had been before.

She laughed. "I don't look much like the Frazier girl now, do I, Florence?" she asked, and then, before Florence had time to speak in answer, she burst into another long peal of laughter.

She laughed and laughed, holding on to the sink with both hands to steady herself. Tears ran down her cheeks, and her face reddened with her laughter.

Florence stared at her. "What's the matter with you, you sillie?" she asked, plainly puzzled by Lily's wild outburst.

For weeks the house had been so quiet—so filled with hushed whispers and soft, low footfalls that Lily's laughter seemed doubly loud in the little kitchen.

"Oh, it's so funny," she said, still panting after she had recovered herself. "All this time everybody, including myself, has been pitying me because I married Pat. Everybody thought I was ruining my life by marrying a poor cab driver—and yet you people were all pitying Pat because he had married me. You all thought he had married beneath him when he married a wild person like me, didn't you?"

"Oh, no," Florence said, with emphasis. "I knew you were smart and well bred and all the rest of it. But the rest of them didn't. They just knew you looked like the Frazier flapper, and acted like her. They couldn't see the difference. My mother thinks there are just two kinds of women in the world—bad ones, like the Frazier girl, and good ones, like Elizabeth Ertz."

The door opened and Elizabeth came in. Her face was ashen from lack of sleep, and her feet, in their their clean, white canvas shoes, dragged as if lead weights were tied to them.

"I'm dead," she announced, and dropped down upon a chair beside the kitchen table. "Absolutely dead. Could I have some coffee?—the stronger the better."

And then, after a minute, she added: "Dr. Billings thinks Pat is going to pull through. Of course, we can't know positively—but he says he has changed for the better, he thinks."

Lily clasped her hands, with their broken nails and their bruised knuckles, under her chin. She turned around with her back to the room, as if she were looking at herself in the mirror again. But her eyes were closed and her head was bent above the clasped hands for a minute. . . . For the first time in her life she really prayed. And the prayer was a prayer of thanks for Pat's life.

"Yes, he's changed for the better—" Elizabeth's slow, weary voice spoke again, and Florence answered that she hoped from the bottom of her heart that he would go on getting better.

"And me—I've changed for the better, too," said Lily to herself, filled with relief and thanksgiving.

Another 10 days went by, with Pat getting a little stronger every day. There were times when his fever rose, and he had to be given cooling baths and things to make him sleep. There were two times when Elizabeth Ertz telephoned in great haste for the doctor. But, for the most part, there was little anxiety in the house after that one night that had been filled with anxiety and worry.

And then on the first day of June Lily made her big decision.

It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day when she drove up before the tall white building where Staley Drummond had his offices.

It's a Pity To Stay Fat

In these days

Don't do it, when so many have found the right way to reduce. You see them in every circle—happy, healthy people who have lost the burden in an easy, pleasant way.

Since the year 1907, people have been fighting excess fat by scientific methods. They combat the cause. Were fat as common as it once was the dress styles of today could never have come into vogue.

That modern method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. Over fat people have used them for twenty years—millions of boxes of them. Now you see the results wherever you look. Why not enjoy them yourself?

Users of Marmola are not forced to abnormal exercise or diet. Moderation helps, but starvation is taboo. One simply takes four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for the many good results. You know just what you are taking and how you get the effects. You will have no fear of Marmola when you know the scientific facts.

Go get a box today. Learn how it acts, and why. Then watch the results in new vitality and loss of weight. Then tell your friends. You can do no greater kindness to people who overweigh.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Lenore Ulric Wants to Play In French to the Parisians And in German to Berliners

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

LENORE ULRIC has one ambition—to play her famous roles in French for the Parisians and in German for the Berliners. She can do it, too, like Richard Mansfield, who once talked over with Sarah Bernhardt a plan for appearing in Paris opposite her. Like Mansfield, Lenore Ulric is quite at home in both languages, though her French is acquired. Her German is both fluent and correct, as it ought to be, for she was born in New Ulm, Minn., a German settlement made famous by an Indian massacre. Her grandfather had come over from Alsace, and little Lenore talked nothing but German until she was four years old. Later she moved with her family to Milwaukee, in the days when signs appeared in store windows: "English spoken here." So Lenore Ulric ought to speak good German—and she does.

GEORGE SEIBEL

It was in Milwaukee that she first appeared on the stage, in Friend's old stock company. Lowell Sherman was the leading man, and Ruth Chatterton was the ingenue. Little Lenore was an extra girl. She left school when she had attained the fourth grade, in order to go on the stage. The theatrical bacillus was in her blood.

The rest of her career is history. Her first star role was as the Hawaiian girl in Richard Walton Tully's "Bird of Paradise." Then Belasco saw her act—and saw that she was an actress. Next she appeared in a Belasco production, in Willard Mack's "Tiger Rose." Later came that exotic Chinese drama, "The Son-Daughter," and then the sensational success of "Kiki," adapted by Belasco from the French, which ran for 600 performances in New York. And now "Lulu Belle," playing at the Nixon, which ran for 461 nights in New York. In many ways it is the most remarkable piece of acting Miss Ulric has ever done, so realistic and lifelike that in colored circles they are arguing the question whether the actress isn't colored.

"I'm used to that," she said. "I have been taken for a granddaughter of Queen Liliuokalani and for a grand-niece of Li Hung Chang. I only wonder that nobody has ever laid me on Sarah Bernhardt's doorstep. Perhaps Sarah never lived in Milwaukee or New Ulm. Such tales and gossip are a tribute to an actor's power to create illusion. People reconstruct our lives for us and make us into something resembling the characters we impersonate. It's so unromantic to hail from Minnesota or Wisconsin. I can only hope to even up things some day by going to France and Germany and playing in French and German."

Will the Bills be covered by an EQUITABLE CHECK

. . . not merely once, but year after year as long as you live or as long as your wife survives you?

Equitable life insurance primarily protects your family in the event of your death. But the Equitable interpretation of life insurance is to make it of lasting value—to you in your own old age, to those who survive you, and for such other definite purposes as you may desire.

The Equitable way is the modern way—a well planned budget for your life's objectives. Here are two typical examples:

"The first day of the month my income check is at the door, the first mail. The absolutely unfailing regularity, and the realization that it will never fail, seems too good to be true. It is not only the financial aid, but it is a monthly reminder of my husband's thoughtfulness and kindness".

"An endowment policy taken out years ago gave me funds just when I needed them to buy a house. Today my present insurance protects my mortgage, will give an income to my wife, and insures school and college for my children, whether I live or not. My insurance is my best investment and means of saving."

Your Equitable representative can help you plan your own insurance, and if you wish to study out your problems in advance we have prepared a booklet, "Every Month of Every Year", which will be sent to anyone upon request.

Iron and Lime in Diet Necessary to Health

DR COPELAND

MOST of us eat our meals simply because they satisfy our appetites. Seldom do we give any thought to the real food requirements. We read that we should eat various kinds of foods. We are told that each contains some particular elements we must have if we would thrive. Scientists have proved it is necessary for the system to have this food if we are to enjoy perfect health.

The elements most commonly discussed are certain essential minerals. Included under this heading are iron, potash, soda, magnesium, phosphorus, sulphur, chlorine and iodine.

Every individual must have a certain amount of iron each day. We are told if an iron free diet were taken for any length of time there would result one of the deficiency diseases such as scurvy.

Growing children and mothers require more iron than men do. Women need iron to meet the demands peculiar to their sex. Children, of course, need iron for the building of the tissue and to increase an important element in the blood, called the hemoglobin.

Lean meats, eggs, the hulls of cereals, fruits and vegetables are rich in iron and they should be given an important place in the diet. Fresh cow's milk has not as high an iron content as other foods, yet the iron it does contain is one of the greatest elements in aiding the proper growth of the child.

Next to this comes spinach, cabbage, string beans, carrots, dried beans, prunes and nuts. Of course, too, there are other foods of high iron content.

Next in importance is the need for lime. You cannot have strong teeth, good bones, strong muscles unless you have sufficient lime in the foods you eat.

Experiments have shown that many children who suffer in very early life from diseases of the bones and teeth could have been spared this trouble. They would have escaped if the mother's diet had been properly balanced during pregnancy.

Do not get the mistaken idea that because your bones are all formed and you have all your teeth that there is less need for lime. This is not true. Bones and the teeth are constantly in need of proper nourishment to prevent serious changes in their structure.

Milk, fresh fruits and vegetables are richest in lime. Here is an interesting fact—there is more calcium in milk than there is in an equal amount of lime water. So, in general, it may be said, milk is the most important lime carrier.

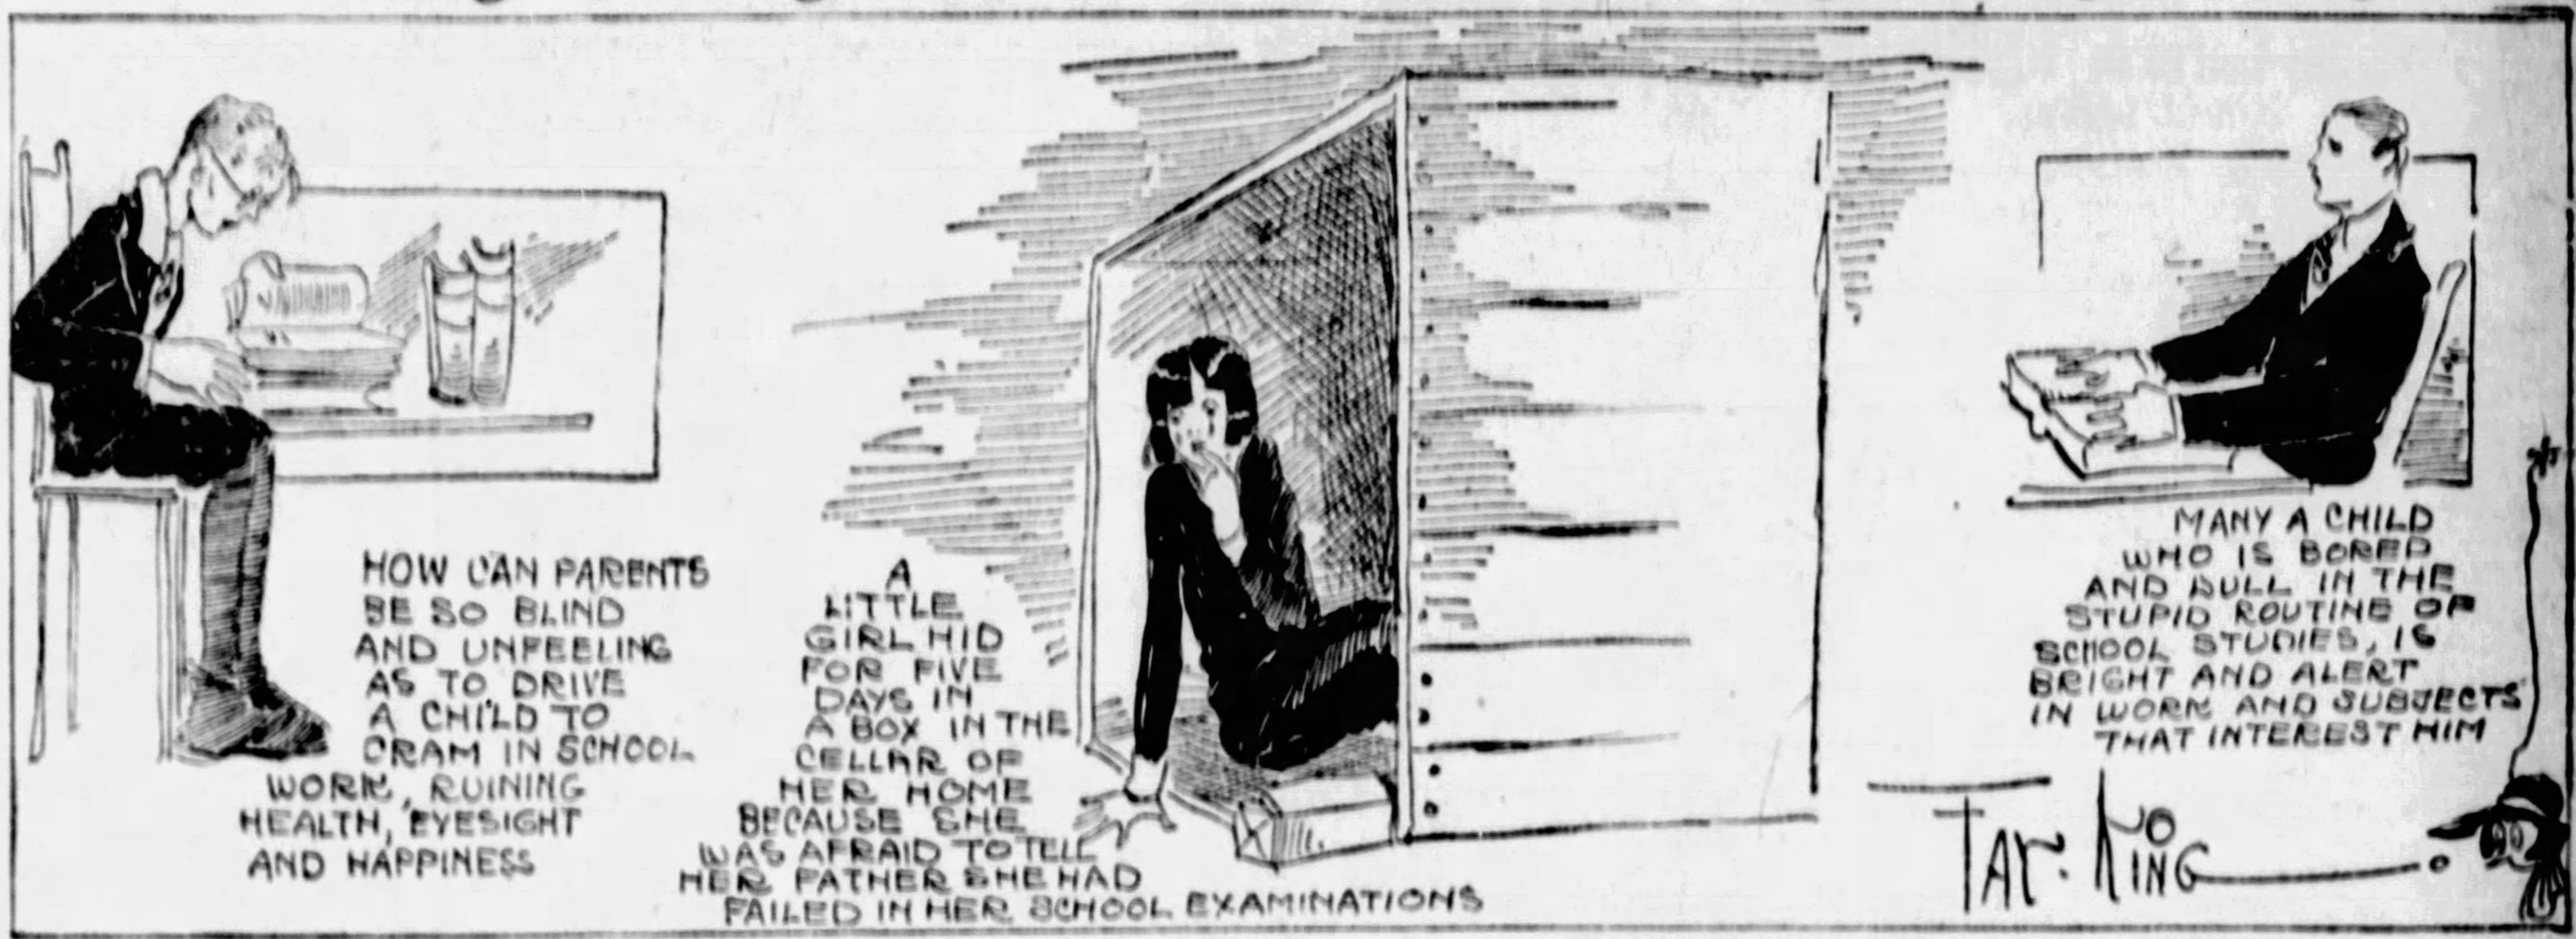
Forcing Study Hurts Children, Says Fay King



HOW CAN PARENTS BE SO BLIND AND UNFEELING AS TO DRIVE A CHILD TO CRAM IN SCHOOL WORK, RUINING HEALTH, EYESIGHT AND HAPPINESS
A LITTLE GIRL HID FOR FIVE DAYS IN A BOX IN THE CELLAR OF HER HOME BECAUSE SHE WAS AFRAID TO TELL HER FATHER SHE HAD FAILED IN HER SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS
MANY A CHILD WHO IS BORED AND DULL IN THE STUPID ROUTINE OF SCHOOL STUDIES, IS BRIGHT AND ALERT IN WORK AND SUBJECTS THAT INTEREST HIM
FAY KING

By FAY KING

AGAIN we read of a child so worried over her failure in school examinations that in fear of her father's anger she hid for five days in a box in the cellar of her home.

The mother of the pretty college girl who so mysteriously disappeared, admits that she censured the girl about her poor showing in school, and reminded her of the cost of her schooling and warned her she must do better.

School days are by no means happy days for all children. They are days of misery and unhappiness for many.

Some children really bright and gifted in many ways cannot adjust themselves to the dull routine of school studies. All teachers are not able to make study clear and interesting. I remember teachers in my own unhappy school days who, instead of enlightening me, stunned me with fear.

Sensitive children suffer greatly from worry when reminded of the cost of their schooling or when too much is expected of them.

I have known parents to take great pride in the mental progress of their children and seem to be totally unaware of the pale worried little countenances, weakening eyes, undernourished bodies and nervous twitchings.

Too many people believe in cramming education into a child, and when youth is over never giving a thought to study again. The fact is that one may learn much more and enjoy studying much more, when he is older. Many persons have learned more from books after leaving school than they did in school.

Any stenographer or secretary will tell you that she has worked for men whose business was a great success, but whose grammar in dictation was very poor.

Madge and Philip Veritzen Talk About Noel

PHILIP VERITZEN'S slighting reference to his son roused all the combativeness in me. But I knew that I must let no personal rancor interfere with my purpose, so I answered him with apparent saccharine meekness.

"Please do not be angry, Mr. Veritzen. Yes it does concern him, but it also concerns me, as hostess, very much."

He put his hand impetuously across the table and clasped mine. I had the uneasy knowledge that in the lighted room the action was probably visible to anyone outside the windows, but without awkwardness, even rudeness, I could not withdraw it, so delicate and yet so nonchalant was his action.

"Angry? With you?" his deep voice said. "That is an impossibility. But tell me, what is it that you wish? Not a reconciliatoin, I hope. Remember I once outlined to you very clearly my position on that."

"Oh! nothing so decisive and far-reaching as that," I said hastily, "although I fancy you can guess that I would love—" I broke off quickly at his frown and began again with a hurried explanation of my dinner dilemma.

"You see," I said, "Noel is a daily visitor at our home. We would no sooner think of giving a dinner without inviting him than of omitting a member of the family. But he insisted that you should be told of the invitation, so that if you objected to sitting at the same table with him, he could stay away. But surely—"

He put up his hand with a gesture that any one of the people employed in his offices would have recognized as his command for instant silence, because of his desire to think some problem out. I checked myself abruptly and remained silent while the great producer with eyes bent upon the table before him tapped the back of one hand lightly against the fingers of the other, the invariable sign of concentration with him. But when at last he spoke, his query was so unexpected and irrelevant that it startled me.

"How well does Noel know this Miss Lincoln of whom you were telling me?"

"He has the same casual acquaintance with her that the rest of us possess," I answered.

"Is he at all impressed with her?"

"I do not think so," I returned truthfully. "I think he might be, except for his—his—" my voice trailed off in embarrassment, and Mr. Veritzen finished my sentence.

"His infatuation for Mary Harrison, I suppose you mean," he said coolly. "But that is of no consequence."

I caught myself wincing at a certain note of callousness and ruthlessness in his voice. But I knew enough to make no comment, and my employer continued his strange catechism.

"What is her opinion of Noel?" he asked.

I smiled involuntarily as I remembered the open pursuit of the young violinist in which Eleanor Lincoln had indulged herself.

"The very highest," I returned. "She is undeniably attracted by him, very much to Mary's disgust. But so far Noel has paid no attention to Miss Lincoln whatever."

For an instant I wondered if my ears had deceived me. Then I knew that Philip Veritzen had indeed uttered the astonishing words—"The blind young idiot," in accents expressive of the deepest disgust.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Friday, March 2

Success is largely a matter of buying experience and selling it at a profit.—ANON.

THE planetary configurations for this day point to certain excitements or activities stirred into unusual or unexpected channels or in radically new ventures. The routine affairs or employment may not be satisfactory or meet with great progress unless this spirit of enterprise be turned in these directions. Under the prevailing figure things out of the ordinary should flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which the routine or usual activities may lag in favor of new ventures or turning the spirit of initiative into new or unexpected enterprises. The unusual contacts should flourish.

A child born on this day may incline to use its fine energies in avenues and adventures off the beaten track. It may be attracted by the new and novel rather than the humdrum and conventional.

Notable Nativity: De Witt Clinton, Governor of New York.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Set Bewails Absence of Opera Season as Relief From Dullness of Lenten Period

WE'RE going to miss our opera this winter, aren't we? It is just a short season at best, of course—only two or three, or, occasionally, four days—but it does give a bit of relief from the dullness of Lent. Our local society folks love music, naturally, and fill the boxes at Syria Mosque with their families and friends; but you will admit that the social aspect of the occasion is not entirely lost on them. Opera nights do supply an excellent excuse for entertaining either with dinners "before" or with suppers "after," all quite informal, of course, in accordance with the Lenten code.

It is much too early to speculate on the probabilities of opera next season, but one is inclined to be hopeful about it. There is no denying that it would be a rather welcome respite, just now, from the deadly quiet of this "between" season, when practically everyone is either in the South or in Europe.

And, speaking of being out of town, I understand that Mrs. Julian Burdick and her daughter, Frances, of Von Lent place, are spending some time in New York. You remember, don't you, that Frances' engagement to Charles Cromwell, Jr., of Baltimore, was announced in January?

An engagement that unites a scion of our own Thaw family with a Philadelphia girl was announced a day or so ago in the Quaker City. The man is Henry L. Collins, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Collins, of "Blackburn Farm," Berwyn, and he is to marry Priscilla M. Carstairs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carstairs, of "Waverley," Ardmore. Mrs. Collins was Elizabeth Burd Thaw before her marriage, and she has two sons, Henry and William T. Collins.

Priscilla is very popular in Philadelphia society, where she made her debut several seasons ago. Her fiance is a member of the Merion Cricket Club.

A. A. Milne's "The Romantic Age" will be the next production of the Stage and Play Society, according to an announcement made yesterday. The play will be given, as usual, in Carnegie Music Hall, and the date set is March 21.

I understand that Carroll Fitzhugh, who is president of the society, and his wife arrived in New York on Tuesday after spending some time in the South. And Mrs. Percy G. Kammerer, who is a member of the cast, came back home on Tuesday after being in New York for a short while.

Mrs. Frank C. Stoner, of Beaver road, Sewickley, is entertaining as her house guest her sister, Mrs. Richard Wrenshall, of Hollywood, Cal. Her nephew, Richard Wrenshall, Jr., who now makes his home in Honolulu, came back late last week after traveling abroad for several months, and is now attending the winter sports at Montreal. He will join his mother in Sewickley this week.

The Frank C. Schroeders, of Edgeworth lane, Edgeworth, are planning to give a dinner tomorrow night, I hear, in honor of their son, Frank Slack Schroeder. The dinner precedes the dancing class.

EDGEWOOD CLUB STUDIES WALPOLE AND KIPLING

Mrs. W. D. Stewart, second vice president, was in the chair for yesterday's meeting of the Edgewood Woman's Club when a well-planned program was given as part of the year's study subject, "A Review of Recent Developments in Art, Science, Literature and Politics." Under the day's topic, "Contemporary English Writers," papers on Hugh Walpole, the prose and poetry of Rudyard Kipling, as well as a biography of and a reading from the latter, were the afternoon's offerings. In her paper on Walpole, Mrs. Joseph T. Miller gave a short sketch of his life, touched upon his works and quoted freely from his book on "The English Novel," showing how his ideas therein expressed themselves in his own works. Mrs. J. M. Fetherston gave the Kipling biography, drawing a picture of the young Kipling, a gay, vivacious and active lad, son of a father of fine, artistic tastes and of a cultivated mother. As a writer she spoke of him as "one of the men who opens new regions to our view."

Kipling has imitated no one and been imitated by no one without disaster, Mrs. R. W. Cummins said, voicing regret that his poetry is not as well known to the rising generation as it was 25 or 30 years ago. Mrs. Leighton H. Campbell quoted Patrick Braybrooke as her authority on Kipling's prose, observing that he has done for India what Scott did for the Scottish Highlanders. Kipling, she pointed out, "says a tremendous lot in a little space and gets a maximum effect in a minimum of words." Miss Frances Paull gave the reading, which was "At Howli Thana."

Zona Gale's one-act play, "The Neighbors," will be presented tomorrow afternoon by the Dormont New Century Club in Dormont Masonic Hall. The cast includes Mrs. F. T. Harper, Mrs. J. W. A group of dialect readings will be given by Mrs. James James and the music for the program will be trios and duets by Mrs. Phil A. Franklin, Mrs. Joseph M Orbin and Mrs. Alan B. Wells, with Mrs. J. W. Young, Jr., as accompanist.

America's foremost producer of revues, FLO ZIEGFELD, reveals how women can always look their best

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD, creator of the Revue, producer of the famous "Ziegfeld Follies," "Rio Rita," "Rosalie," the musical version of "Show Boat" and many other lavish productions.

THOUSANDS of ordinarily attractive women fail to achieve loveliness because of this one tiny everyday mistake. Instead of choosing the precisely correct tone in their own shade of face powder, they simply ask for Rachel, Naturelle, Rose, etc., little realizing that face powder shades, even of the same name—are never alike—that with one, only the most ordinary results may be achieved while another brings out an exquisite radiance and loveliness of skin texture and color often previously undiscovered.

No one perhaps is more aware of this astonishing difference than Florenz Ziegfeld—famous creator of the Follies, one of the few distinguished experts on feminine beauty in America. Mr. Ziegfeld says: "There are no shades of known face powder in my opinion that stimulate more naturally the color characteristics of the average skin, that blend more imperceptibly, that so marvelously emphasize loveliness as those of Houbigant—and yet they never cause a made-up appearance—a thing which I detest."

In addition to these fascinating shades of Houbigant powder smart women have found in the new Quelques Fleurs Skin Lotion an extremely effective liquid powder base. 4 oz., $1. Houbigant powders are offered in 6 shades and 12 lovely odeurs—75c and $1.50. For purse use—in the smart new double compact—$2.50.

HOUBIGANT face powder in the new size 75¢

Houbigant face powders may be had in the following shades: Naturelle, Ocre, Rachel, Rose, Ocre Rose and Blanche, and in all the most famous of Houbigant fragrances.

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed nto the blood. It is the function of he kidneys to filter this acid from he blood and cast it out in the rine. The pores of the skin are lso a means of freeing the blood f this impurity. In damp and hilly, cold weather the skin pores closed, thus forcing the kidneys do double work; they become k and sluggish and fail to elim- this poison, which keeps ac- lating and circulating through ystem, eventually settling i joints and muscles, causing ness, soreness and pain, called matism.

Leafs Minus Day, Carson

By CARL W. SHATTO.

IT IS indeed seldom that onlookers are moved to cheers when an able-bodied man beats up a cripple, but that is just what is likely to happen at Duquesne Garden tonight when Pittsburgh's ice Pirates engage Toronto's embattled and injury-riddled Leafs in a National League game.

There is some question as to whether Toronto should be regarded as friend or foe. Those electing to support the affirmative side of this unimportant question can point out that the Leafs have left Carson and Day in the dear old Dominion, and this point should go over well with the judges, for any judge of hockey knows that Carson and Day are the only Leafs who pack a real scoring punch. Carson has scored about three times as many goals as any Torontoan who will perform tonight, and Day is the second best tally manufacturer on the Leaf payroll. Both are laid up with injuries that will keep them out of competition indefinitely.

Another item that makes the Leafs look like so many friends is the time of their coming. Our statistician informs us that the Blues have not registered a goal in their last three games, thus prompting a suspicion that the home boys are in something of a slump. The Leafs, crippled as they are, are just the tonic needed to make any club snap out of it, and it is imperative that the Pirates do some snaping soon. Their lead over Detroit in the scramble for a play-off berth is just one point; Detroit plays the comparatively weak New York American sextet tonight, so it is evident that a Pittsburgh win is not going to be amiss.

And now lend an ear to those supporting the negative, those who elect to regard Toronto as a foe. In their last game, at New York Tuesday night, these same broken Leafs held the Rangers to a single goal, giving the circuit leaders plenty of fight before bowing by a 1-0 count. Any club able to hold the ambitious Rangers to one goal on Tex Rickard's ice is no setup, regardless of all affirmative arguments to the contrary. The Leafs are only a jump out of a play-off berth themselves, and although injuries have cut down their effectiveness, it has not affected their spirit.

Peltzer Wears 13 Double A Shoe

NEW YORK, March 1.—The feet of Dr. Otto Peltzer, German middle distance runner, are so long and slender that he requires a size 13 double A shoe, said Dr. William M. Scholl, Chicago orthopedist, who was host to Peltzer during his recent visit to Chicago.

"He has the most perfectly formed feet of any runner I have ever seen," Dr. Scholl said. "Their unusual length gives him that significant springy stride and a powerful leverage. His feet are normal in every respect and he takes good care of them."

ROSIES BOAST STAR GUARD IN DICK KERR

When the Cleveland Rosies, who are making earnest efforts to cop the championship in the American Pro League, appear here Saturday evening for their contest with the Duquesne Lafayettes at Duquesne University floor in the miners' relief fund basketball carnival, they will present one of the cleverest guards in floor circles in Davie Kerr.

For fully 22 years Kerr has been active in basketball and this year became managing captain of the Cleveland squad, succeeding the veteran Marty Friedman.

DUNDEE ON TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 1.—(INS.)—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion of the world, and his manager, Max Waxman, were arraigned in Municipal Judge Pope's Court here today on charges of false advertising in connection with the fight fiasco here last November, when a scheduled bout between the titleholder and Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, was canceled just before it was to begin. Dundee is alleged to have refused to enter the ring until his share of the purse was delivered to him. He and his manager arrived here yesterday.

FORD JOINS REDS

CINCINNATI, March 1.—(AP.)—The arrival of Infielder Horace Ford has brought the number of athletes now at the Cincinnati Reds' training camp at Orlando, Fla., to 21. This includes 12 of the 15 pitchers. Jakie May is expected to arrive shortly, leaving Pete Donohue and Carl Mays as the only holdouts.

Pitcher Adolfo Luque came from Havana yesterday and took part in the day's batting practice.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 1.—Travia Waner and his pal, Parker Brewer, will be given much attention in the Pirate training camp, but neither is likely to be retained for duty this year. Each is at least a year away, perhaps farther than that. The two strong boys, however, have come into quick popularity through same manly characteristics that make Paul and Lloyd stand out. Class B experience will put a lot of polish on the recruits.

POOCH BARNHART has been in camp one day and already a dozen pitchers are thinking of buying head gears, shin guards and chest protectors. Pooch can hang more clothes lines from the plate to dead center than any man on the club. The sharpshooters are all foot-loose when they pitch to the Pennsylvania Dutchman in practice. Barney surely does hit that old tomato, as Dick Bartell shouts.

NO batter has yet cleared any of the faraway fences. In other years Fred Brickell, George Grantham and Claude Linton smashed the sphere over the right field wall. The left field fence, the deeper of the two, was measured just once, Ki Cuyler clearing this barrier.

DR. WILLIAM MARKS attended both drills of yesterday and he expects to be a daily attendant at the park, but the physician and pal of the players will be unable to take an active part in the sessions. Dr. Marks recently underwent an operation for removal of the appendix. He is feeling fine, but he must be careful.

RALSTON HEMLEY and John Deming are typical of the boys of the Pittsburgh sector. Neither knows when to quit. This spirit is admired by the veterans.

contest the world has ever known. It started away back yonder, and has not only eliminated, but re-eliminated, and in the process it seems that we have yet to see as much as a glint of a new beezer. Of course, it is all by way of killing time while Jack Dempsey is back in his dressing room making important changes, such as changing his mind, and it is a harmless pastime, with no danger of anyone being permanently injured.

I am not so sure that the Rapier of the North will prove a mere cheese knife against the old Rock of Down Under. If he will take my advice, the Rapier will just skip out there and hit Thomas Heeney right on the chin and knock him bowlegged. It is very simple.

If I were the Rapier, I would not delay the matter beyond a few rounds, because it has been by observation that after a few rounds, the Rapier gets a little rusty, and starts striking interesting, but quite ineffectual puglistic poses.

If the fight goes beyond five rounds tonight Thomas Heeney may out-plug the Rapier of the North to the decision. The Rapier has yet to flash with any of his light-heavyweight brilliancy against the tough ones of the heavyweight division. A man who can hit with his right hand as well as the Rapier of the North ought to bowl over fellows like Edward James Maloney, Paolino and Heeney as fast as you can set 'em up for him.

Auburn, Would-Be Pitt Foe, Loses In Tourney

The Auburn Tigers, who so valiantly challenged the Pitt Panthers to a four-game post-season series to decide the national collegiate basketball championship a couple weeks ago, were unable to win the Southern Conference championship in the annual Southern tournament held in Atlanta this week, losing out in the final game to Ole Miss (University of Mississippi) by a 31-30 score.

The Auburn team, led by Akin, sensational forward whom the Tigers were going to pit against Hyatt, failed by a foul point to tie the Mississippi team. Akin scored seven goals from the field.

The lineup and summary of the final game follows:

plaints is striking in this year's camp and the whole crowd is hoping the good fortune will continue. No player has asked to be excused on account of a sore arm or other handicaps.

GOOCH ON WAY

With the exception of Catcher Johnny Gooch, the whole team is intact at Paso Robles. Johnny wired Bush yesterday telling his boss he would arrive Saturday. The fact that there are several rookie catchers in camp has peppered up the work of the pitchers. Just the same the pilot will be glad when Johnny arrives.

The attention of the camp veterans is upon Travia Waner and Parker Brewer, the two country boys from Oklahoma, who are getting their first taste of big league atmosphere. Both are outfielders and Waner is a cousin of the two famous little yellows who have produced the Waner act for the edification of the National League fans. The relative of the two first string outfielders bats and throws right-handed, while Brewer chucks the ball lefthanded and bats the same way. Each weighs close to 190. Waner is only 18, his pal being a couple of years older.

Others drawing the spotlight of interest are Coburn Jones and George Gottlieber, recruit infielders. The latter has a seasoned appearance after his experience in the Western League. Gottlieber made a good impression by his general actions. He is no rookie in the real sense of the word. Jones is the rookie in the fullest sense. Scarcely 20, the refreshing kid is a prototype of Dick Bartell. The place had plenty of noise with Paprika Dick on the grounds. But the arrival of Jones made it a double dose. With these two pepper boxes in the lineup of the Hooligans, the camp games should be very interesting.

Lee Meadows will not require much time to reach the condition attained by the other first string chuckers who beat him to camp by a week. Meadows has been working out in Florida. He took two sessions yesterday and today is ready for a couple more.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

whether the fake weight figures were not given out for the purpose of leading some of the unwary to place bets on Delaney.

ANOTHER source of doubt is the bout of a little more than a year ago in which Delaney lost to Jim Maloney. Developments since have demonstrated that an opponent has got to be pretty bad to make it possible for Maloney to beat him. On the other hand Heeney stopped Maloney in one round.

If Delaney could be so far off form on one occasion he may have the same kind of a slump at any time. It proves him an in-and-outer in a sense.

Besides, it is questionable whether Delaney, only a shade above a light-heavyweight in poundage, would draw as well for Rickard & Co. later in the title series as a real heavyweight like Heeney, and somehow or other victory generally goes to the principal who promises to fit in the better with the plans of the wily promoters.

James Mason.

Delaney ought to win if in his best form, but since that weight-faking business it is by no means certain that he will. If it is on the up-and-up it would appear that, to win, Jack must land a knockout in eight rounds or so, or be worn down to defeat over the full route by the heavier and stronger Australian.

THE Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission makes it clear that it is going to enforce to the letter the recent ruling affecting suspended managers and boxers.

Conditions will be quite different as a result. Suspended pilots or fighters will not only be barred from corner work or competition for the full term of their sentence, but they will also be refused admission to any boxing show even as spectators.

Nor will suspended managers be allowed to make matches for their fighters.

The case of Red Mason may be used as an illustration. Though under suspension for several months, Mason was permitted under the old system to make matches for his stable meanwhile. But that's all "out" now. No suspended manager can make a match for any of his fighters, and any club dealing with a suspended pilot will have to answer to the commission.

IN effect it amounts to the suspension of the entire stable as well as the skipper when any manager is put under ban. Either that, or the members of the stable will have to break away from their pilot and put their business affairs in the hands of another manager who is eligible.

If an innocent boxer in such a case happens to be under contract to a manager who is suspended it would be rather unjust to keep the fighter idle, but no doubt the commission will straighten out any such complication by withdrawing, temporarily at least, recognition of the contract, thus making it possible for the leather pusher to select a different manager if he wants to continue work.

Bo McMillin.

That is one of the main objects of the ruling—to lead the boxers to be more careful about the kind of managers in whose hands they place themselves.

BO McMILLIN, who has left Geneva as football coach to accept a similar post with the Kansas Aggies, may have to pull some wires to escape a ruling similar to that which cost Joe Guyon his job as spring football coach at Clemson College.

Guyon was excused from spring practice with the Louisville baseball team in order that he might give some attention to the Clemson gridders, but when he reported he was informed that he was ineligible for coach in the conference of which Clemson is a member because he had played professional football in 1927.

Out West the Kansas Aggies have been asked to explain how they can use McMillin under the conference rule prohibiting the employment as coaches of men who have played professional football.

There was such a regulation in old conference code, it is admitted, but whether it is still in force—which would bar McMillin—or has been eliminated from the revised by-laws of the Big Six without notice to the public has yet to be made known from official sources.

CUM POSEY, manager of the Homestead Grays, than of which there is no stronger Negro baseball team in the country, has again been chosen to officiate at the sectional basketball tournament among Negro high schools, which will be held at Clarksburg, W. Va., tomorrow and Saturday.

Posey officiated in this tournament last season, his all around work being so satisfactory that he was asked to return in the same capacity this year.

Posey, in his days as a basketball player, had no peer among Negro athletes hereabouts and was one of the best basketeers ever developed in Western Pennsylvania. And his work as an official is on a par with the brand of basketball he delivered for so many years.

Incidentally Posey gives out the information that his Homestead Grays baseball club this year will be the most powerful he has ever assembled.

RING BUGS PICK TOM TO BEAT JACK

By DAMON RUNYON,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The Rapier of the North is not as sharp as it used to be, and many of our ringworms rather expect to see the once bright and flashing blade all hacked up against the rugged old Rock of Down Under at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Meaning they look for M. Ovila Chapdelaine, otherwise Jack Delaney, to get a licking from Thomas Heeney, the corrugated gladiator from New Zealand in the ubiquitious Mr. Rickard's heavyweight elimination contest, series 5, page 8, chapter 102.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

THE 15-round Queensbery argument between Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney, scheduled for tonight in New York, another of those heavyweight elimination affairs, has the fight fans guessing.

Tom Heeney.

Ordinarily, on form, they would pick Delaney to win, on account of his superior speed and boxing ability and the quickness and power of his punch. That is if the weight conditions came anywhere near to being equal.

But since it developed that Delaney's weight has been misrepresented and that instead of having grown into a real heavyweight, as previously asserted, he scales only slightly above the light-heavyweight limit, there has been much speculation as to whether this may not be another of those affairs in which the man who will draw best for the promoters later generally manages to win, and

GOOCH'S ARRIVAL TO FILL SQUAD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 1—The Pirates will be close to their championship form at the end of another 10 days, provided their training success continues. As the big squad prepared for two long drills today, it was seen that nearly all of the first string pitchers are getting ready to bear down while the infielders and outfielders, with only one day of action, are in exceptional condition.

The training schedule calls for more than two weeks of preparation at Paso Robles with some Regular-Yannigan contests on the card. Bush doesn't expect to throw the two squads into competition before Saturday. Donie, however, is convinced that batting and fielding jousts are more important than games at this early period.

Outside of a few sore muscles, the host of veterans and rookies are free of ailments. The absence of com-

HAHN BEATS CONGER, GERMAN WITH EASE

By JIM HURLEY,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Lloyd Hahn, Boston Athletic Association runner proved that he will be America's sturdiest hope in the middle distance events at the Amsterdam Olympics this summer when he easily vanquished Ray Conger, Iowan speedster, and Dr. Otto Peltzer, Germany's ace and holder of two world's championships, in the international mile race at the Knights of Columbus games in the Garden last night.

Hahn did the trick with ease and his time was exactly 4:13, a second slower than the indoor record held jointly by Joie Ray and Paavo Nurmi made in the old Garden, March 7, 1925.

Dr. Peltzer is on the bounding main today headed for his native Germany with a mental hazard which, according to all the rules of pyschology, should work against him in the Amsterdam Olympics.

The lithe, blond German was never in it from the start. The gun sent them off: Hahn, Conger and Peltzer, they stayed that way until the finish with Hahn 15 yards ahead of Conger and Peltzer having practically quit the race a half a lap from home.

The great Hahn, who has lost but one race in two years, set a fairly quick pace from the gun. It was his only salvation to wear down Conger and take all the "finish" out of him for Ray is recognized as the strongest finisher in the game at 1,000 yards.

There was no finish in him last night and Peltzer never saw the finish.

HARRY OSWALD has a margin of some 228 points, an almost unsurmountable barrier to overcome in the final blocks of his 1,000-point pocket billiard match with Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia cue star, today if he is to defeat the Philadelphian in their engagement here.

Oswald was defeated in both blocks of yesterday's play, losing in the afternoon by a 122 to 69 score and in the evening by 125 to 109.

Robert Carter, of Kalmer's, went back into the lead in the Pittsburgh Three-Cushion Billiard League last night by defeating Eddie Smith, of Dimling's, 45 to 36, on the Kalmer table.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Willie Hoppe defeated Otto Reiselt here last night, 50-17, scoring his thirty-second victory in the American Three-Cushion Billiard League tournament.

TUNNEY, LOUGHRAN DIFFER ON WINNER

NEW YORK, March 1.—Two champions differ on the outcome of tonight's heavyweight elimination bout between Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney.

Gene Tunney, who is in training at Miami Beach, Fla., picks Delaney to win, while Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, believes Heeney will win. Both figure the bout will go the limit of 15 rounds.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM does not hold Bobby Brown, the Cuban Negro light-heavy, whom he meets in the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, cheap. He knows the ability of the newcomer, who has startled the fans of the East with his boxing and punching prowess, and is training diligently for the battle, according to word from his manager in New York. Brown's work against Babe McGorgary, Jeff Smith, Homer Robertson and others has been such as to command the respect of all the men in his class.

The card has been completed for Monday night's show. Tug Phillips and Phil Scello will meet in the eight-round semi-final, Denver Leonard of the Hill and Jack Unglo of Etna are paired for the second bout and Bruno Scalis of Donora meets Frankie Ketchel of the Hill in the opener.

The guide was showing a party round the natural history museum.

"These stuffed birds," he said, "are the finest specimens in the country, and are worth many thousands of pounds."

"Good 'eavens!" exclaimed one man. "What are they stuffed with?"

LONE STAR GAS POINTS UP

Prices were steady on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but early dealings were in small volume, with no particular issue giving evidence of being in special favor with the trading element.

The better tone of the oil and gas stocks in New York has firmed up that class of security in the local market and there has been some quiet buying in some of the better grade fuels. Lone Star Gas was handled early today at 54, with the market for the shares displaying a firmness which was interpreted as forecasting an upward adjustment of the market price when the oil situation becomes more apparently improved.

Standard Sanitary was a fraction higher in the forenoon dealings, but not much of the stock was handled. The company demonstrated its ability to maintain its earning power last year at a time when a good many of the high grade industrials were hard put to make a favorable comparison with 1926 results.

The state borrowed from the bank 1,100,000,000. Rate of discount, 3½ per cent.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 1.—The cotton market opening steady at an advance of 1 to 6 points today, sold 10 to 15 points net higher shortly after the call on covering or rebuying by recent sellers apparently influenced by relatively firm Liverpool cables. May deliveries sold up to 18.72c, or 15 points net higher and within 5 points of the high price touched at the end of last week. At this figure offerings increased and prices eased off 4 or 5 points. Reports of a steady spot situation in the South and the comparatively small volume of offerings, however, gave the market a steady undertone.

Private cables reported trade calling and covering in Liverpool, with merchants there buying near and selling distant months. India was reported buying cotton goods more freely in Manchester.

The reaction from the opening advance carried the market back to 18.60c for May and 18.15c for October, or within 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations on the old crop and 4 points net lower on the new. Prices were within a point or two of these figures at midday, with trading comparatively quiet.

South Texas, Agricultural And Oil Eldorado, Booms

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE SOUTH, Feb. 29.

A WELL-DEFINED line bisects Texas from the Red River of the North to the Rio Grande, a line traceable by verdant hills covered with cedars and oaks and, in the springtime, endless multi-colored wild flowers. In the valleys enriched for centuries by the sluffing of limestone, rotted and disintegrated by time and weather, are great wheat and oats and feedstuff farms.

Sweeping in long undulating plains from these hills to the gulf coast, a distance of 250 to 350 miles, are millions and millions of acres, ranging from bale-to-the-acre black waxy lands to chocolate loam and sandy lands incomparably productive of standard farm crops and fruits, and supporting great herds of cattle, horses, sheep and goats.

This is South Texas, a region destined to bulk large in America's future agricultural and economic history—more than 20,000,000 acres still remain in the raw.

ALTHOUGH more than a dozen rivers wind their way through this vast domain, only an infinitesimal part is irrigated. And although artesian wells yield torrential flows, little has yet been done to irrigate the adjacent lands.

It is along this line—the Balcones escarpment as it was named after a geologist—that the famous oil fields of Texas are now vying with king cotton for supremacy. Production already has crossed 150,000 barrels a day. Pipe lines, including one 150 miles long, link these lakes of liquid gold with the markets of the world. Millions are being aggressively spent to swell production.

After the oil will come the large-scale irrigation which will bring this empire into its own.

FROM a capable authority, William F. Bregan, of San Antonio, come these facts, compiled for this column:

"The truck districts of South Texas, when the North and East are shrouded in snow and ice, 5,000 carloads of spinach are shipped to market, and some of the producers realized from $500 to $1,000 an acre for this single crop from December to April. Growers of cabbage frequently produce 12 tons to a single acre, as much as can be grown in less favored spots on an entire farm. Single cabbage heads often weigh 25 pounds. Okra frequently totals 150 bushels worth from $600 to $800 an acre.

"Tomatoes reach 800 crates to the acre, selling at $1.25 per four-basket crate, or $1,000 an acre—$10,000 for a 10-acre patch from a single crop. Potatoes here fill 150 to 175 bushels per acre, worth around $6 per hundredweight.

"Most of America's supply of Bermuda onions is grown in South Texas. An entire shipload of seed from the Canary Islands is used here annually. Bermuda onions seldom yield less than $1,000 per acre.

"One grower reports over $9,000 from a five-acre tract of celery. Another grower produced approximately $5,000 worth of strawberries in February from a three-acre tract. Peaches, pears, plums and the celebrated papershell pecans, producing from $50 to $250 per tree are common place in some sections.

"Native pecan trees, growing wild and uncared-for along the creeks and rivers at the edge of cotton fields, have lifted many a Texas farm mortgage in a single fall after all other crops were off the ground.

"Young citrus orchards in the lower Rio Grande Valley that produce $1,000 an acre, with truck crops growing between the rows, and alfalfa, chickens, hogs and dairy cows on the same land, are so customary as to excite no comment from our own people. Orchards not yet in bearing will produce in a few years 20,000 carloads every normal season.

"IN THIS same region we have deposits of the finest kaolin for making china and pottery; we have an unlimited supply of lignite for industrial purposes; we have five of the greatest gas fields in America; we have undeveloped water power; we have one of the few natural deposits of bithulic paving material; we have an unlimited supply of the finest building rock unquarried, including granites.

"No emperor's dream of domain ever equalled the mass of wealth Providence has stored up in South Texas awaiting development by man."

VERILY, we are citizens of no mean nation!

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, March 1.—Correct anticipation that today's unofficial estimates of farm reserves would favor holders led to early higher prices today for all grains. Heavy profit taking sales, though, especially in corn, brought about subsequent reactions, but not until rye and oats had established new top quotations for the season. Starting ¼c to ⅝c up, wheat later scored some additional gain. Corn opened unchanged at ¼c higher and afterward showed advances all around, but then dropped sharply. Provisions went up grade.

At noon corn was ¼ to ⅝c net lower and wheat at ⅛c to ⅝c advance.

One of the leading unofficial crop experts reported in his monthly summary today that the present farm reserve stock of corn is the smallest with one exception since 1919. This small total, too, he said, must be considered in connection with the heavy volume needed for use in order to offset the lack of full feeding value, and from this standpoint there has been perhaps only one year in the last 25 with so small a potential corn stock at this date.

Regarding wheat, a feature of today's private reports was an assertion by an acknowledged authority that agents in practically every county from Central Missouri to Eastern Ohio forecast an acreage abandonment that if realized will be sensational in soft wheat territory. The acreage increase of the five states involved, however, may counterbalance the winter killing.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The raw sugar market was quieter early today, but the undertone was firm, and while spot prices remained unchanged at 4.40c, shipment sugars showed further advances. The only sales reported here were 25,000 bags of Cuban to an operator for late March shipment at 4.46c.

Covering by March shorts and buying of the later positions by commission houses, which was promoted by the continued strength in the spot market caused opening advances of 2 to 3 points in raw sugar futures. Offerings increased after the call, however, and reactions followed under hedge selling and liquidation. The market at midday ruled 1 to 4 points net higher.

The refined sugar market was firmer, unchanged to 10 points higher, list quotations ranging from 5.65c to 5.75c for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts continued fairly liberal, and better new business was reported at the inside level.

INDIANA OIL NET FALLS OFF

NEW YORK, March 1.—(INS.)—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana reported a net profit in 1927 after depreciation and taxes reserves of $30,122,456, or $3.24 a share (par $25) earned on 9,221,540 shares of stock. This compares with a net in 1926 of $55,008,764, equal to $6.00 a share on the 9,126,615 shares of stock then outstanding.

Col. R. W. Stewart, the company's chairman, pointed out to directors that the decrease in earnings was "due principally to reduced realization on sales of Petroleum products, as well as to the large loss occasioned by the large carryover at prices in excess of realization during 1927." He declared the latter more than offset the fact the company reduced manufacturing costs and sold more products with less man power and at a smaller marketing cost per barrel.

It was made known that the company is carrying in cash government securities and investments a total of $86,969,521, against $66,290,502 a year ago.

STOCKS TAKE DEFINITE TURN UP

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP.)—Stock prices turned upward early this afternoon after an early period of irregularity. Short covering played an important part in the buying movement, particularly in such issues as American International, Radio and International Nickel, all of which recorded substantial gains. Net advances in the general list ran from 1 to 4 points, but these were interspersed with a sprinkling of losses almost as large.

Credit conditions were unchanged with call loans apparently in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 4½ per cent. The low yield basis of the New York City corporate stock financing was widely interpreted as evidence of underlying ease of money conditions.

The general market presented a rather confused appearance. Bear traders continued to pick out new weak spots while pools brought forward new favorites. Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil sank to a new low in reflection of the omission of the dividend. National Lead declined further in response to the relatively poor 1927 report, and Continental Baking A went into new low ground on growing fears for the safety of the dividend.

On the other hand, new peak prices for the year or longer were attained by Victor Talking Machine common and convertible preferred, Western Dairies A and B, Bayuk Cigars and Baldwin Locomotive. Montgomery-Ward and Sears-Roebuck rallied on reports of an increase in February sales.

CORRECTION.

Owing to an error in the compilation of the local bank clearings for the month of February, 1928, the figures brought to The Sun-Telegraph by the Pittsburgh Clearing House yesterday, and published in all but the Sport Final edition, were incorrect. Correct figures for the month were: Exchanges, February, 1928, [illegible]; Balances, February, 1928, [illegible]. The error was not discovered until late in the afternoon when this paper was notified immediately by Carl D. [illegible], manager of the Clearing House. Notification came too late for correction of the figures in the Wall Street Close edition, but correct exchanges and balances for the month were carried in the Sport Final. All other extensions in the table of clearings were correct.

In compiling the February figures, the total exchanges and total balances for the first week of the month were inadvertently omitted.

Reserve Policy Sways Market.

"The key to current and near future stock prices," says the March issue of Moore, Leonard & Lynch's Graphic Market Review, "is undoubtedly to be found in the monetary situation and the key to money conditions without doubt lies in the policies of the Federal Reserve Board. In 1927, the Federal Reserve Board by the lowering of rediscount rates gave encouragement to the stock market. Since the first of this year, on the other hand, the Federal Reserve policy has been changed. There is little question that the slightly downward trend of stock values during the first six weeks of 1928, culminating in a break on February 17, was the result of Federal Reserve action in tightening money rates. It is entirely likely that lower stock price levels will continue to develop if Federal Reserve authorities persist in their recent policy of discouraging further expansion in brokers' loans. On the other hand, the general business outlook is such that stock prices could with little difficulty commence a renewed advance if at any time Federal Reserve officials become satisfied that conditions warrant less restriction upon the flow of money into security markets. General opinion has it that higher money rates constitute a temporary rather than permanent development."

In Morals Court today, Magistrate John Orie sentenced Walsh to 60 days in the workhouse and the housekeeper to 30 days.

BUGS BAER Says

IF READERS of this scientific column continue to pay strict attention we guarantee them an education that will fit inside of a walnut.

The fuelless engine is an assured fact. It will be attached to a wheelless chassis and tour on a roadless map.

The next great stride in the series of scientific limps is television.

The telephone companies are now able to throw your picture three thousand miles across the Atlantic. Experiments made on the Erie Canal with a pocket kodak were very successful.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The only trouble with broadcast pictures that the portrait grows a beard on the way, du to atmospheric pressure and static. Another bad feature is that a profile of a distinguished citize is so affected by the Aurora Borealis that it evolv into a full length study of a rhinoceros chewi Spanish moss.

A prominent society lady's picture reached Europe with a frozen nose. Investigation indicated that it had been short-circuited by an iceberg in mid-Atlantic.

The broadcasting of pictures is novel only because of the magnificent distances obtained. Many years ago we saw grandpop toss th family album through a window and knock a cat off the back fenc The cat's yodels corroborated the initial success of television.

We saw Dr. Herbert E. Ives demonstrate television before members of the American Optical Illusion Society.

Oscillating luminescence is thrown through a projection tu upon a screen. The first subject was that of a hen's egg served w spinach, which proved to be a picture of the opening of Parliamen London.

The portrait of Harry Lauder was received with cheers had lost his kilts somewhere over the ocean. A lifelike study the Prince of Wales arrived safely over three thousand miles ocean. The absence of the hoss indicated that it had refused a other water jump.

Dr. Ives apologized for Sir Harry Lauder's arrival in ne by explaining that television is still in its infancy.

Which is all right, but doesn't neutralize the fact th Lauder is old enough to know better.

A Frank Discussion of the Charges Contained in the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Advertisement

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, in a paid advertisement, makes serious charges against the United States Senate Committee that came here to investigate the miners' strike. It also makes serious charges against the local newspapers.

"As the actions and pronouncements of the visiting Senate committee seem to stamp it as a prejudiced body," says the Pittsburgh Coal Company, "we are taking this means of telling the essential facts, because neither that committee nor the newspapers seem willing to present both sides of the question."

The Senate committee can answer for itself. Its chairman, Senator Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, says the charge of prejudice is untrue. He says the Pittsburgh Coal Company was given every opportunity by the committee to present its side. He directs attention to the fact that at every mining camp visited the mine superintendent, as well as the strikers' representatives, was given a hearing. J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, was heard at length. He was with the committee all day on Saturday.

Chairman Gooding is a capitalist and employer himself. In his own state of Idaho he is not regarded as a friend of organized labor. When he has run for public office, it is said, he has rarely carried the communities in which the unions are strong. In a letter to the employes of the Pittsburgh Coal Company last week, telling them that the Senate was going to investigate the coal business of Western Pennsylvania, President Morrow said: "You are being told all kinds of sensational stories about what this may lead to. Do not worry about these sensational reports. The government is just as friendly to you as it is to anyone else."

Is it not significant that the Senate committee came to the same conclusions, after its survey of the coal mining camps, that Miss Fannie Hurst, the novelist, reached, after making a similar investigation for The Sun-Telegraph?

Miss Hurst came here with open mind. It was because her mind was open that The Sun-Telegraph engaged her for the task. The Sun-Telegraph desired to put its own views of the situation to the test. In its desire to be fair it took into consideration the possibility that its reporters and editors, through long familiarity with the conflict and close proximity to the scene, were not seeing things from the proper perspective. That is why it employed Miss Hurst, an outsider, to whom it was a new story, and told her she could write about the strike, free from any restrictions whatever.

In so far as the Pittsburgh Coal Company's charge that the newspapers have been unfair may have been intended to apply to The Sun-Telegraph, this newspaper denies and resents it. The implication in the use of paid advertisements by the Pittsburgh Coal Company to present its side is that it was refused the use of the news columns. That is not true. The Sun-Telegraph has not only been willing but eager to present the Pittsburgh Coal Company's side. It has often sought, often without success, to obtain the Pittsburgh Coal Company's side.

Until it became evident that the Senate was going to investigate the strike, the attitude of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, as expressed to The Sun-Telegraph by C. E. Lesher, its executive vice president, was that there was no strike, and the any had nothing to say.

The news columns of The Sun-Telegraph have always n, and will remain open to the Pittsburgh Coal Company, en for criticism of The Sun-Telegraph or for anything else of ortance.

The Sun-Telegraph has been deeply concerned over the e because it has hurt business, and particularly because one its results has been that thousands of men, women and children have been allowed to live amid surroundings that were not even fit for animals. Fannie Hurst proved it. The Senate committee proved it. The situation is a disgrace to civilization.

A secondary matter, but also of great importance, which ye The Sun-Telegraph concern, was that one of the larger panies practically had been accused of dishonesty. The ted Mine Workers charged that the Pittsburgh Coal Com, after signing an agreement to pay the so-called Jackson scale of wages up until March 31, 1927, did not keep its , but repudiated the agreement on August 10, 1925. In vertisement the Pittsburgh Coal Company denies that it the agreement. It is important that the facts be pre without color, and here they are:

When he was questioned by the senators last Saturday, ent Morrow said he did not regard the Jacksonville ent as a contract, but only as an arrangement, which mpany was neither morally nor legally bound to fulfill. e word "contract" appears in the agreement itself in the lause, as follows:

> "This joint conference of operators and miners of Illinois, ana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania as now constituted, reby reaffirm the wage scale CONTRACTS now existing be een the United Mine Workers of America and the coal opera s whose interests are represented in this conference, and eby extends the same for a period of three years, from April 1924, to March 31, 1927, in all of their terms, provisions and ditions.'

e Pittsburgh Coal Company argues that while it made ent with the union to pay its members the Jackson le of wages until March 31, 1927, it was under no moral obligation not to supplant its union miners with non and pay them lower wages.

hose not possessed of legalistic minds this argument ppear otherwise than as sophistry and pettifogging. no such interpretation was placed upon the pact by d Mine Workers, by Secretary of Labor Davis and of Commerce Hoover, who used their good offices to out the agreement, OR BY THE MAJORITY OF PERATORS THEMSELVES.

atever the letter, that was certainly not the spirit of ment. And in that connection the tenth clause of the tract that was reaffirmed at Jacksonville is pertinent. lause the signatories, of whom one was J. A. Donald vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, agree fulfillment of this agreement is guaranteed by the ional Union, and the fulfillment of joint agreements en to in any district shall also be guaranteed by the officers International organization, as well as by the officers of rict, and it shall be their duty to see that all such agree-

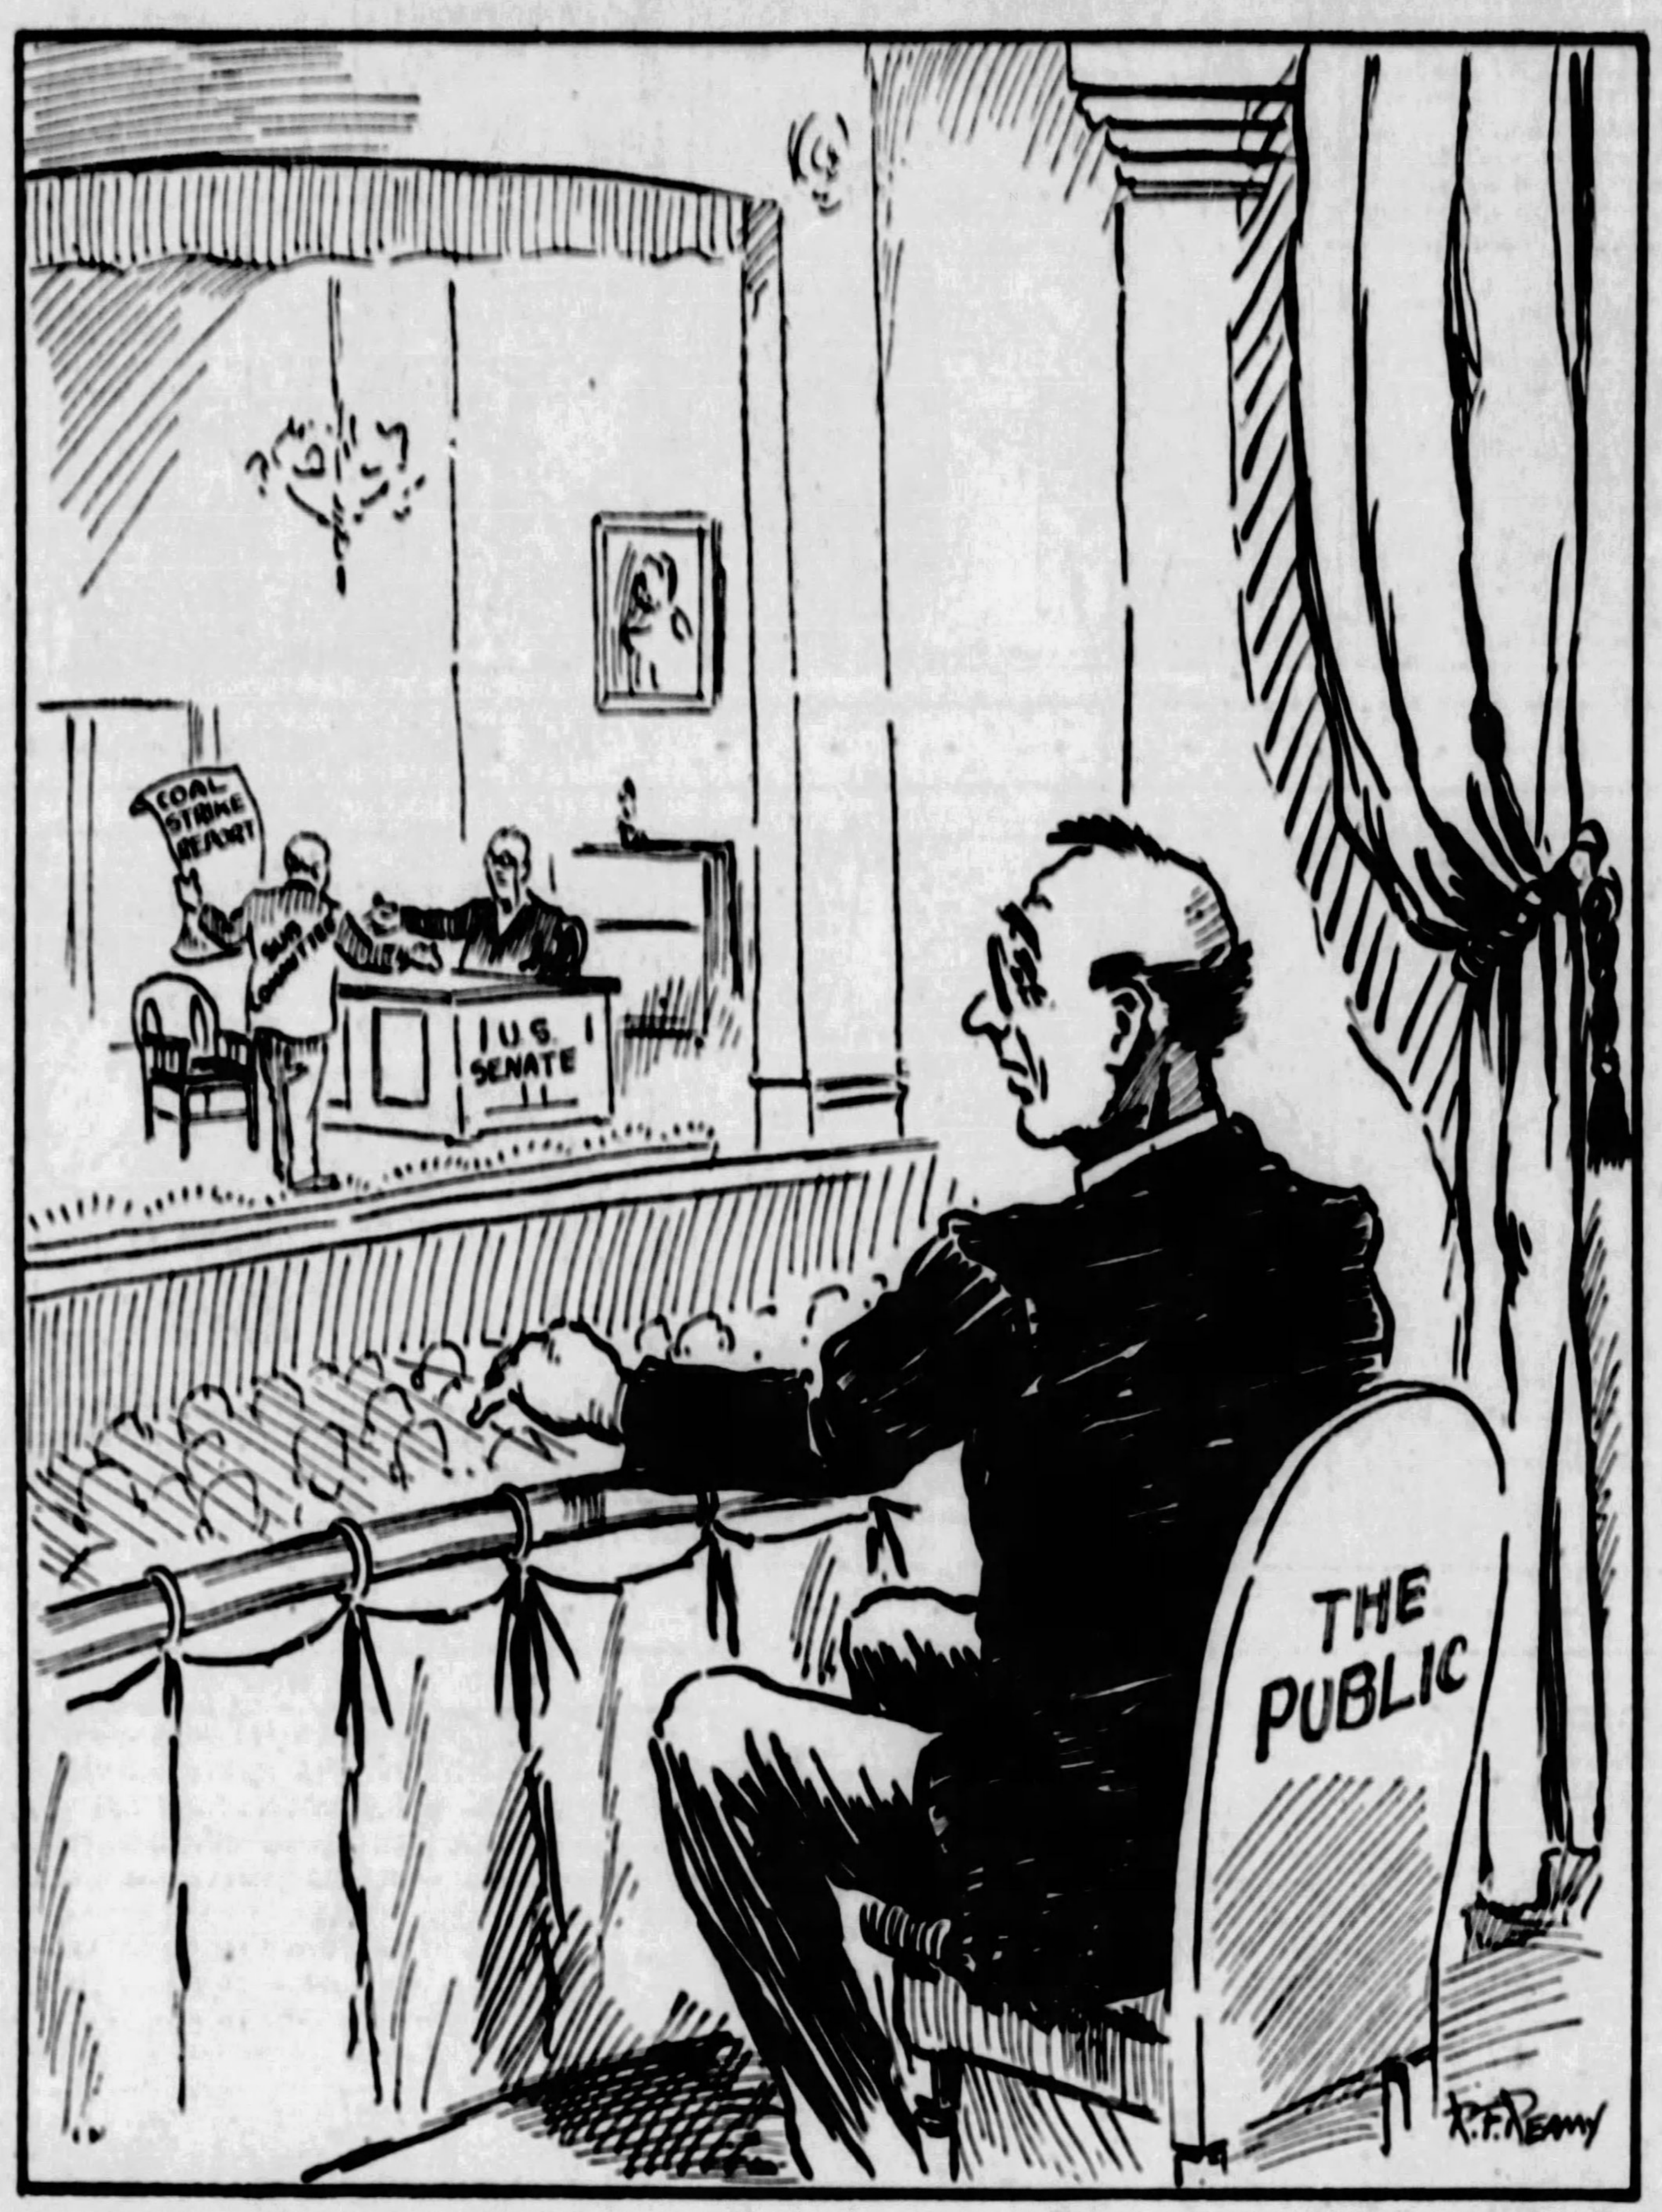
THE STAGE IS SET



O.O. McINTYRE

Stop at Plymouth

PLYMOUTH, England, March 1.—On the starboard—old salt that I am—lies Plymouth, and our six-day floating village begins to disintegrate. A tender bobs in choppy channel waves to land half the passengers for the midnight sleeping train to London. The rest go on to Havre.

A few days ago we were Americans, and now we are foreigners. Plymouth stands sullen in a fog. Under a cabin window is the rabble of rich Cockney dialect. "Hi say, Guvner!" shouts a beery old blighter. "Toss us a half bob, wil yer—that's a good 'un."

England somehow always seems to reflect the somber hue of its leaden skies. It fails to offer that quick, volatile warmth that comes with the first touch of France, yet in its dignity and aloofness you feel an intangible sincerity that France does not command.

You love France for its childish, simple gaiety, but in England you are gripped by the sterner emotion that "these are my people." Their coldness is ofttime annoying, but it is the annoyance of changed customs—like the annoyance of the Nebraskan at New York manners.

For six days news of the outside world has been encompassed in the fragmentary reports in the ship's wireless newspaper. It seems to aim for unimportant dispatches from unimportant places. An Afghanistan prince has tonsilitis, or such. So there was a lively scramble for the London Times and the Daily Mail.

But the leading headline in the Times, "Discussion in Parliament,' did not offer great comfort. The stodginess of Britain in contrast to the briskness of America is completely symbolized by newspaper headlines. A big shaggy sheepdog with a cup hung around its neck just trotted into our cabin.

The way my dog leaped atop a trunk with a series of terrified yelps indicated he thought he had come face to face with the British lion. The friendly animal was merely collecting coins for a seaman's fund, and his amiability completely won over my pooch, who is following him about as devotedly as a hound trails a covered wagon.

Rene, our cabin steward with the changing voice, tells us with high excitement and magnificent shoulder shrugging, that twins were born in the night to a mother in the steerage. Her wordly assets consisted of $9, but a collection amounting to more than $300 was realised in an hour.

* * *

An American crowd, incidentally, is touched by sentiment as no other nationality. We hear much of the European charm of manner, but it is noticed the deference paid to the aged and invalids aboard ship is among our "uncouth" countrymen.

* * *

There is excitement today over a young girl who, with that rare courage of youth, came aboad at New York without a passport. France is strict about such formalities, and there is already betting she will not be permitted to land, and will be forced to return on the same ship. She laughs with girlish freshness at the very idea.

* * *

But the real excitement of the voyage was in the tender at Plymouth when a ruddy, rotund man touched a passenger on the shoulder. It was the long arm of Scotland Yard we read about in novels, reaching out for an offender. As the story swung from lip to lip, the incident ends a chase of many months, and although the prisoner did not know it, his cabin companion was also from the Yard. The whole thing was the culmination of a blackmailing affair in Monte Carlo.

* * *

One of the table companions was a gentleman in slouchy dress and with a walrus mustache—the type you rather expected might take a horn out of his pocket and begin selling fish. But at Plymouth he was met by a band in fur drum major hats with chin straps, and it developed he was a lord mayor of an English city returning from a tour of America. Travel is broadening. One learns you can never tell a lord mayor by the cut of his vest.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Mars and a Lady of Lyons

THERE is a lady living in the city of Lyons, France, who has established a prize to be awarded each year to the person who, in the preceding twelve months, shall have done the most to advance knowledge of the physical condition existing on the planet Mars. All the other planets are excluded from the competition, together with all the rest of the heavens, (tout le reste du ciel). It is Mars or nobody. The lady, who is described only as "an enthusiastic reader and profound admirer of the books of Camille Flammarion," has placed the distribution of her gift in the hands of the director of the Juvisy Observatory, which was Flammarion's.

It has now been awarded four times; once to G. Fournier, of the Observatory of Jarry-Desloges, once to Professor William H. Pickering, of the Observatory of Mandeville, Jamaica, while twice it has been divided, the first time between Messrs. Antoniadi and Baldet, of the Observatory of Meudon, and the second time between W. H. Wright and Frank E. Ross, of the Mount Wilson Observatory.

A more than momentary interest may be felt in the unique attempt to stimulate discovery concerning that one of the little flocks of worlds accompanying the earth as dependents of the sun which has aroused the most confident anticipations concerning its habitability by intelligent beings. If Mars is really carrying a "cargo of souls," we surely ought to manage somehow to find out the fact. Such a discovery would be, in many ways, the most notable in human history.

It would lead to the greatest enlargement of the mind of man that ever occurred. The mere consciousness that there was another world, filled with thinking aspiring creatures, traveling with ours around the sun, sharing with us in the beneficence of the solar radiation, wondering, studying, and speculating, like us, about their environment, their origin, their future, their ultimate fate, would be an enormous stimulation to our intellectual faculties.

As things stand today we are marooned on an isolated island of open space, unable to escape from our little rotating globe, weak in physical force, but gifted with marvellous, outreaching minds, which yearn for companionship, communication and sympathy with and from the glorious hosts of shining orbs that glitter and sparkle innumerable in the black depths of the surrounding universe.

As long as we learn from our researches only that these luminaries are chemically and physically "bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh," but cannot find that some, at least, are, like the earth, abodes of life and spirit, our isolation and loneliness becomes thereby so much the more distressing and eventually unbearable. Thus seen, the universe appears at best as a mere mass of soulless machinery, or as "a banquet hall deserted," or one that has never been occupied—built and decorated in vain, for guests that never came.

But suppose that some day soon, in consequence of the encouragement afforded by this enthusiastic lady of Lyons, and by other influences, it should be proved—as is not impossible—that Mars actually possesses inhabitants; that the strange markings our telescopes reveal on its surface have some connection with the lives and activities of the thinking beings dwelling upon it—what a revolution of thought and sentiment would instantly follow! Then, indeed, there would be "new thought" upon the earth. A companion world! Other beings out there in space seeing the universe as we see it, looking at us, at our round, shining globe, glittering like a mercury bulb in the sunshine, and wondering and speculating about us while they gaze, straining all their ingenuity to construct instruments capable of showing proofs of our existence. Can it be doubted that some kind of communication would be established, or that once the two worlds knew one another they would do one another good?

Don't smile at this. Within a few years past acceptable scientific evidence has been found that Mars has clouds and "weather." That certainly is something to build on. And then there is Venus, to my notion an even more promising world than Mars, though more shy, as she should be. Let us have more ladies of Lyons to fall in love with the planets, and who can guess what life on the earth will be in some approaching generation when it shall positively be known that man is not alone in the heavens.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Watch Your Temper

WHAT about these outbreaks of temper that are becoming more frequent?

Are you ill or are you controlling yourself less than you did a year ago?

You fly into a rage over matters of really little consequence.

That means you are losing mastery of yourself.

If you are not more careful it will not be long before you will have few hours in a day that find you in a normal state.

At this rate what will you act like when you become old?

You are preparing yourself for a lot of discomfiture and a nervous condition which will not allow general peace.

What do you get out of these emotional skirmishes?

There is no recompense.

You are weakening yourself mentally and physically and hastening the day when you will go on the human scrap heap.

You may think it indicates more interest in your job to attack it feverishly, nervously, keyed to the highest pitch, but in this you are mistaken.

When under a high nervous tension you cannot give the well-founded consideration you should to your work.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Pain Is a Teacher

PAIN is a teacher and I have learned
Much of a lore that I else had spurned.
I have learned something all hearts should know;
Pity always for each brother's woe.
Pain can be cruel and yet be kind,
For it opens eyes that were once so blind,
Showing the cure for another's grief,
The deed or the word that can bring relief.
Patience and purity follow pain.
Learn, then, to count it not loss, but gain!

Tales that are Told

Deserved It

LITTLE JACK wanted a dog—an Irish terrier for choice—but a doubt existed in the mind of his mother as to whether it would be wise to introduce one into the house on account of the cat's dislike for the canine race in general.

Still muttering wishes and threats under his breath, Jack departed for school with a look of determination on his face.

As dinner-time drew near, his mother was, as usual, standing at the window to watch the young hopeful approaching the house. To her astonishment, she saw him hauling on a rope to which was attached a terrier. The dog was firmly resisting Jack's efforts, and squatted back on his haunches, allowing itself to be towed.

Mother left the window, and awaited developments. In a short while Jack entered the room, still dragging the unhappy pup.

"Look, mother!" he panted. "May I keep this dear little dog? It followed me all the way home!"

The Only Way

WHEN Brown arrived at the station he found he had twenty minutes to spare before his train was due to start.

So, having bought a ticket and seen to the labeling of his luggage, he dashed across the road to a barber's shop, seated himself in a chair, and demanded a hasty shave.

But the barber was a man whom nothing could hurry—a melancholy mortal, who despite Brown's protests applied the brush in so slow and deliberate a manner that the luckless traveler found himself confronted with one of two horrible alternatives—to miss his train or take his seat in it with a face covered with soap.

"Do hurry!" pleaded Brown.

But the barber paid no heed. He continued lathering.

At last Brown could stand it no longer. He seized his tormentor's hand, and, "For pity's sake," he cried, "hold that brush still; I'll wiggle my head!"

Appearances

IT WAS the Sabbath, and MacPherson was hammering away at the bottom of his barrow when his wife came to the door.

"Mon," she exclaimed, "ye're makin' a muckle clatter. What wull the neebours say?"

"Never mind the neebours," said the busy one. "I maun get ma barra mendit."

The woman thought this over for a minute or two, then:

"Oh, but, MacPherson, it's verra wrang tae work on the Sabbath," she expostulated. "Ye ought tae use screws."—London Answers.

Where They Come From

CHANDLER, the chairman of the cheese company, was something of a diplomat, and at one of the board meetings had been very expansive about prospects.

"Yes, it's always prospects," remarked a gloomy shareholder, "always prospects, but never results. I begin to doubt if results will ever come."

"Oh, Mr. Browne," said the chairman. "You are a pessimist."

"I can't deny it," agreed the other mournfully. "A pessimist is a man who has had too much to do with optimists."

Reason vs. Arms

AFTER every great war comes the dream of organizing the world for eternal peace. Napoleon had it. According to Emil Ludwig's "Napoleon," on one of the last restless nights of his illness at St. Helena, he left this memorandum for his son:

"My son should not think of avenging my death. He should profit by it. I was obliged to dominate Europe by arms; in the present day the way is to convince reason.

"My son ought to be a man of new ideas and of the cause which I have made to triumph everywhere: To reunite Europe in the bonds of indissoluble federation.

"Let the kings listen to reason. Europe now no longer provides matter for maintaining international hatreds. Prejudices are dispersing, interests are widening and becoming fused, trading routes are being multiplied. No longer can any one nation monopolize commerce."

The Were Wolf

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The old legend had it that some people were changed especially by night, into a kind of creature called a Were Wolf.

This was a savage that roamed the country and devoured unoffending sheep and other creatures, not sparing men. It was remorseless and a truly ferocious animal, probably possessed of the devil or inhabited by some evil spirit.

All legends will be found to contain in themselevs some element of truth about human nature, and the fact is that human nature cannot only be incredibly good, but it can be incredibly bad.

Just as some men have risen to heights of nobility, so there are others that have descended quite as low into the depths of depravity.

We are reminded of this in reading the case of a kidnaper in one of our great cities who carried off a child and returned her to her father as a dismembered corpse.

The inconceivable brutality of this deed shocked the American people. It was probably the most bloodthirsty crime which the country's annals afforded.

Any writer of fiction would have been severely censured if he had depicted such a person, but what we would not tolerate in fiction, fact has furnished us. The facts are truly appalling.

We cannot understand such a nature. We cannot conceive a motive for such a crime. The depths of the human heart must contain jungles unspeakably ferocious. There must be persons wholly devoid of any moral restraint and wholly given over to evil passions.

It is the kind of tale that causes every father and mother to shudder and frightens little children. It is not the tale of a diseased fancy, but of actual occurrence.

Horace Bushnell once preached a sermon in which he demonstrated that the dignity of humanity was revealed in its ruins. The very remains of Karnak and Luxor, their grandiose places in the past, show that man was truly great.

And in the same way the debased character which was shown in this crime of kidnaping and murder reveals the depths and, by implication, the heights to which humanity may attain.

Style Rebels

MERE man, the world's worst slave to fashion, is hoping that the revolt in England against the "biled" shirt for dress occasions, headed by the Prince of Wales, may speedily win.

Since man discarded metal armor, the shirt with the pleated front has been his greatest sartorial discomfort. Those to the manor born may in generations get used to it. But in these days of the new rich it irks unduly.

When man gains the modern woman's courage to dress for comfort rather than for style, he will become happier if not handsomer.

German Humor

EMIL LUDWIG, eminent biographer, complains that American women are spoiled by having been given too much independence by their husbands.

"Given," did he say?

Emil, don't be funny.

A Frank Discussion of the Charges Contained in the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Advertisement

ments are carried out, BOTH IN THE LETTER AND IN THE SPIRIT."

A. J. Musser, vice president and general manager of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation, told the Senate committee Monday, without equivocation of any kind, that his company had regarded the Jacksonville agreement as "a valid contract" and had lived up to it.

Horace F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, apparently regarded the Jacksonville agreement as at least morally binding. He has repeatedly stated with pride that his company kept faith with its union workers. Only within the past month the attorneys for his company demanded a retraction, under threat of a libel suit, from a weekly magazine because, in an article which alluded to the company, the writer said that the operators broke their agreement with the miners without mentioning that the Pittsburgh Terminal did not.

The plain truth about this whole matter is that no amount of quibbling will remove the stain from the company that did break its agreement.
